Victory 'Explodes Myth of G.O.P. Trend' Says Hannegan — Machine Triumph, Asserts Opposition.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 29. — Democratic National Headquarters were jubilant today over the substantial margin by which William G. Stigler, Democrat, won over Edwin C. Clark, Republican, in the special Congressional election yesterday in the Second Oklahoma District after a clear-cut campaign on Democratic and New Deal issues.

With only 18 of the eight-county district's 331 precincts still reported today, and those sparsely populated, Stigler led Clark by 3777 votes. The count was: Stigler 21,405, Clark 17,678.

Robert E. Hannegan of St. Louis, Democratic National Chairman, commenting on Stigler's victory said: "The myth of a nationwide Republican trend has been exploded completely and decisively by voters in the Oklahoma Congressional Second District. . . . The election of Bill Stigler is an endorsement by Oklahoma voters of the record of the Democratic administration in the conduct of the war and is an expression of confidence by them in the capacity for leadership provided by the Democratic party."

"Tuesday results indicate conclusively that the Republican party cannot expect preference on a negative program based only upon the complaints against necessary wartime restrictions."

Republican Leader's Comment.
Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, who had previously issued exultant statements immediately after Republican victories in 8 of the 11 recent special congressional elections, had no prepared statement this morning. His oral comment to the Post-Dispatch was as follows:

"There is scant comfort for the New Dealers in their margin in this overwhelmingly Democratic district. The results show a tremendous decrease in the usually normal vote. The showing the Continued on Page 5, Column 1.

ALL FROZEN FRUIT AND VEGETABLES TO BE POINT FREE

Canned Peas off Ration List—Low Meat Chart to Continue Through April 29.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP). — Acting to free cold-storage space for meat, the Office of Price Administration announced today that all frozen fruits and vegetables may be purchased without ration stamps beginning Sunday.

In line with the emergency move, prevailing low ration point values on all popular cuts of beef, pork, veal and lamb will continue in effect through April 29, while the ration cost of butter will stay at 16 points.

In the processed foods category, canned peas are also made ration free, cut from a present value of three points for a No. 2 can. Carrots in No. 2 cans are cut two points to a new value of three, while tomato juice in can sizes through 14 ounces, now requiring a range of two to five points, is reduced one point.

Taken at the request of the War Food Administration, the action freeing all frozen fruits and vegetables from rationing supplements earlier removal of point values from a limited number of such foods. Those going to a zero rating Sunday are:

Apples, blackberries, boysenberries, cherries, currants, dewberries, grapes, loganberries, olives, peaches, raspberries, strawberries, youngberries, blueberries, elderberries, huckleberries, mixed fruits, plums, cut corn, lima beans and peas.

For meats, the principal exceptions to general maintenance of the March points are types packed in tin or glass containers and certain ready-to-eat meats. Most of these items are reduced one or two points.

Among canned fish varieties, sardines and mackerel are reduced four points, to eight points a pound.

Other changes in the meats-fats chart reduce the point values on shortening and salad and cooking oils one point to a new value of four points a pound. Cream, Neufchatel and creamed cottage cheese go up two points a pound, from 10 to 12 points.

Lard continues at zero point rating and margarine remains at one point a pound, while fig and plum jams are assigned a zero point value, reduced from two points a pound because of heavy production and slow movement into consumption.

Report Says Union Committee Seeks to 'Subvert Congress to Its Totalitarian Program'

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP). —The CIO Political Action Committee was assailed by the House Committee investigating Un-American Activities today as representing "in its main outlines a subversive Communist campaign to subvert the Congress of the United States to its totalitarian program."

In a 200-page report bristling with criticism of the CIO group and many of its leaders, the committee headed by Representative Dies (Dem., Texas), asserted that in the coming elections the "Communists will throw their entire weight into the CIO-Political Action Committee."

"Hillman Instead of Browder." "Their political leader will be, in effect, Sidney Hillman instead of Earl Browder," the committee said. "They will attempt by stealth and subterfuge to do through the Political Action Committee what they have failed to do when functioning as a political party under their own name. . . . To gain political leadership over millions of voters."

In New York, Hillman issued a statement in which he said Dies "has again delved into the rear-warehouse of a warped mind and come up with the same show-means which he has been peddling to the American people for the last eight years in an effort to stir up national discord and disunity."

His attack on the 5,500,000 men and women in the fighting ranks of the CIO is based on fear. He fears the militant mobilization of the American working men and women for political action in this crucial year. He fears that their unity will drive Mr. Dies and others of his stripe from the American political scene."

To Hillman, chairman of the Political Action Committee and head of one of the CIO's most powerful unions, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the report devoted an entire chapter. Also singled out for separate chapters were Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel; Harry Bridges, head of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union of America; and other CIO and political action officials.

The Dies committee emphasized that it did not "allege that Sidney Hillman is a Communist or a Communist sympathizer" but said there have been times when Hillman clearly seemed to "endeavor to collaborate with Communists for the attainment of his own political objectives."

Pressman's "associations with Communist left-front organizations have been numerous," the report commented, "and numerous witnesses have testified to Bridges' affiliation with the Communist party of the United States."

Of Curran, the committee had this to say: "The National Maritime Union of America, under Curran's leadership and domination, has toed the Communist party line through all its changes in recent years."

The committee emphasized that it did not "challenge for one moment the right of organized labor to engage in political campaigns within the limits of the statutes which govern such activity," nor did it intend to criticize the legitimate activities of organized labor.

Fund by "Tyrannical Taxation." By Hillman's own admission, the report said, the political Action Committee expects to raise and spend two million dollars in this year's elections, with CIO unions — a majority of which it said "have an entrenched Communist leadership" — contributing a large part of the total.

Many CIO members, it charged, will be coerced into contributing to "this Hillman-Communist conspiracy" whose major objective "is to discredit the Congress and the method of obtaining contributions 'is a piece of tyrannical taxation' on workers."

Only passing reference was made in the lengthy report to Philip Murray, CIO president, the committee said.

MAN WHO DUPED SCORE OF WOMEN HELD IN MURDER

Swindler Arrested in New York Linked With 'Gardenia Murder' in Los Angeles July 27.

WED NINE OR MORE WITHOUT DIVORCE

Took St. Louis Woman as Wife and Disappeared When She Became Suspicious.

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP). — A woman between two men who had received his marriage proposals led to the arrest today of Roger Lewis Gardner, wanted by Los Angeles police for questioning in the "gardenia murder" on a golf course there last summer, Agent E. E. Conroy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said today.

Conroy described Gardner as a man of many aliases, an impersonator, swindler and philanderer, adding that he was charged with crimes ranging from grand larceny to bigamy. He is to be arraigned today before a United States Commissioner as a fugitive on charges of impersonating Government officials.

Gardner had obtained $1500 in cash from one of the women who provided the tip-off to authorities, Conroy said, declining to identify either woman or to give details of incidents leading to the man's arrest in a fashionable midtown apartment.

The F. B. I. said Gardner, a 35-year-old Lexington (Ky.) resident, had passed himself off at various times as an F. B. I. man, OPA investigator, War Department agent and Federal attorney. He has been convicted of numerous crimes, the F. B. I. said, and had married more than nine women without obtaining divorces from any.

In Los Angeles last July 27 Mrs. Ora Murray's nude body was found on the golf course, a crushed gardenia beneath it. She had been beaten to death. Los Angeles police learned Mrs. Murray had been with a man identified as "Paul" before her body was found.

Investigation disclosed this man also was known as Grant Wyatt Terry, under Federal investigation for posing as an attorney for the War Department's lands division.

A thumbprint of Terry's on a document was applied to and checked with that of Gardner in the F. B. I. files.

Yesterday, the F. B. I. said, a report was received here that a man describing himself as Donald Devereaux, a Federal attorney, had obtained $1500 from two women. Photographs of Gardner were identified and agents seized him. The F. B. I. also charged that Gardner had wives in Passaic, N. J., Lexington and Williamsport, Ky., Okmulgee, Okla., St. Louis, New Orleans, La., Alamogordo, N. M., Indianapolis, Ind., and Newport Upper Falls, Mass.

He married a woman in Lexington.

NEIGHBORHOOD'S SHRINE HONORS 1500 IN SERVICE

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Residents of the Sarah street-Kennedy avenue neighborhood were looking with pride today at the $5000 red granite, twin-towered shrine to the community's 500 members of the armed forces that was dedicated by the local board today.

The memorial is to be known as Army Engineers Castle Gates, taking its name from the insignia of Army Engineers Corps. The name was chosen by the local board, Edward P. Ryan, pastor of St. Matthew's Catholic Church, 2700 North Sarah, who was struck by the architectural possibilities of the emblem. Although the project is sponsored by the St. Matthew's Chapter of American War Dads, it is non-denominational and contributions to the fund came from virtually all residents of the neighborhood, which has four other churches.

The shrine, which is 35 feet wide and 25 feet in height, is to contain nine stained glass windows, eight honoring various branches of military service, and the ninth bearing a life-size portrait of Christ. The names of the community's men and women in service will be on a roll of honor. The community's war dead will be honored by a bronze plaque.

CHURCHILL SEEKS CONFIDENCE VOTE AFTER DEFEAT ON DOMESTIC ISSUE

He Tells Commons Government Cannot Accept Rebuff on Education Bill — Chamber Cheers Him.

LONDON, March 29 (AP). —To the cheers of the House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill today bluntly demanded its support all down the line for his Government's program and called for a vote of confidence, staking his war leadership on the single issue of an amendment to an education bill.

Taking up the challenge posed by a one-vote defeat last night, the Prime Minister declined to distinguish between a domestic problem and a basic issue of the Government's leadership.

At the next sitting of Commons, he said, an amendment providing for equal pay for men and women teachers — written in by a vote of 137 to 135 over the Government's objection — will be struck out by the Government and "this act of deletion will be regarded as a vote of confidence in the present administration. If the Government does not secure an adequate majority (supporting deletion of the amendment) it will entail the usual constitutional consequences."

These are the resignation of the Government and the formation of a new Cabinet. (British censorship does not permit correspondence to tell when Commons will meet next but it may be tomorrow.)

Churchill's Attitude. To suggestions that the amendment in no way involved lack of confidence, Churchill declared: "I cannot attempt to control the activities of members. I can merely offer them some suggestions as to the consequences which may attend their actions. Certainly we cannot go on to the present basis of a Government which has been defeated, after the language used from this bench, and into the very great tasks that lie immediately in front of us."

He was interrupted often by cheers and once — when he declared "it really is impossible to distinguish between a vote on domestic policy and a vote on the general policy of the war in this country" — by some cries of "rubish."

Tackles Issue at Once. When he stalked into Commons today, Churchill turned immediately to the teacher wage issue and declared:

MODERN ARMY HAS TOO MUCH EQUIPMENT, STILLWELL SAYS

Not Weapons, But 'Guts, Push, Speed and Surprise' Win Wars He Contends, Citing Civil War.

WITH CHINESE TROOPS IN NORTHERN BURMA, March 29 (AP). —Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell says wars are won "not with weapons, but with guts, push, speed and surprise."

Stilwell, who has soldiered 43 of his 61 years, believes most troops in this day and age carry too much equipment. "They violate one of the fundamental principles of war," he says.

He recalls how Union and Confederate soldiers in the Civil War "thought all over the states with only one blanket, one rifle, some ammunition and a pouch—the latter for personal stuff, such as stolen apples."

PATTERSON URGES ALLIES LAND MORE WAR JOB OR LABOR TROOPS AT ANZIO, DRAFT FOR 4-F'S PARIS RADIO SAYS

Suggests to House Committee National Service Act for Rejected Men, 18 to 37.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP). —Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the House Military Committee today the time had arrived for 3,500,000 4-Fs between the ages of 18 and 37 to be assigned to essential industry or to be inducted into the Army in labor battalions.

"We face an actual danger," Patterson said as the committee continued its study of the manpower situation. "It seems quite plain that some method of controlling the utilization of 4-Fs in essential war work more extensively than under existing practice would promote the winning of the war."

One method to utilize the 4-Fs, he explained, would be by enactment of national service legislation applicable to men between 18 and 37 who have been classified as physically disqualified today as unfit for military service. He said assignment of such men to essential activities could be under control of a director of national service.

Another method would be by extension of the present Selective Service mechanism," he said. "The 4-Fs in war activity or other essential activity would be given occupational deferments and would remain as before. The 4-Fs not in war activity or other essential activity and found by the local boards to be qualified for such activity would be inducted and placed in the enlisted reserve."

As the need for additional workers in an essential activity became evident, he explained, the men assigned to the enlisted reserve would be directed by local boards to take employment in such activity, retaining their civilian status and receiving the wages and "other ordinary incidents of civilian employment."

Men directed into essential employment and refusing to go, he declared, "would be called by the Army to active military service."

Gurkhas Give Up Hangman's Hill and New Zealanders Withdraw From Another Height

LONDON, March 29 (AP). —The Paris radio said tonight that the Allies had landed "considerable" reinforcements at the Anzio beachhead in Italy, including heavy artillery and armor, for a new offensive.

Commentator Jean Piquet added that the offensive "is expected to be preceded by a powerful air assault."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, March 29 (AP). —Indian Gurkha troops, who had clung stubbornly to Hangman's Hill, an exposed knob just below the peak of Monastery Hill overlooking Cassino, have been withdrawn, headquarters disclosed today as the Allies prepared for a new offensive. At the same time Allied photographic interpreters reported that medium bombers had cut all the rail lines from Northern Italy to the German front line area.

Hangman's Hill had been occupied by the Gurkha troops for nearly two weeks, and they could be fed and supplied sufficiently only by air. Withdrawal of New Zealanders from Hill 202 on the slopes of Monastery Hill also was disclosed.

The strategic importance of the two features was lost when the general offensive against Cassino failed to dislodge the Germans, it was explained.

This, plus the difficulties of removing the wounded and bringing airborne supplies made continued retention of the high ground valueless, headquarters officers said.

Allied heavy guns laid down a barrage on German positions in the vicinity of the strongly defended Continental Hotel, smashing German troop concentration forming near the ruins of the hostelry.

German multi-barrel guns, with tank artillery supporting, hammered at Hill 193.

French troops also smashed an Continued on Page 5, Column 4.

RUSSIANS TAKE KOLOMEA, ONLY 30 MILES FROM CZECH FRONTIER

Reach Carpathian Foothills—Another Army Captures Balta, Ukraine City Northwest of Odessa.

LONDON, March 29 (AP). —Moscow announced tonight that Red Army troops had crossed the Prut River and were fighting in the suburbs of Czernowitz (Cernauti), the Bucovina capital.

The communique also announced the capture of Balta, Ukrainian city 110 miles northwest of Odessa. Marshal Stalin previously had issued an order of the day proclaiming the capture of Kolomea, 20 miles northeast of the old Czechoslovakian border, in an 11-mile advance.

Kolomea fell in a "bold maneuver by tank formations and infantry," Stalin said, describing it as "important stronghold in the German defenses at the foothills of the Carpathians."

Trunk Railway Severed. The capture of Kolomea and the Russian entry into Czernowitz, both on the double-tracked Lwow-Bucharest railway, cut the last direct connection between German bases in Poland and Germany and the German southern Army in the Ukraine and Bessarabia. The Bucharest-Lwow line was the last railway east of the Carpathians open to German use and the Nazis must now rely on circuitous lines through Hungary and Rumania to feed their southern front.

Kolomea, a former provincial capital in the southern part of old Poland, had a population of about 40,000 before the war. It was captured by elements of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First Ukrainian Army. This also was the army which entered Czernowitz.

The communique also announced the capture of Khlopokovka and Staraya Ushita, two district centers of the Kamenets-Podolski region and Sheharany, Sinigari and Kotlyushany, all district centers of the Soviet Moldavian Republic.

Push on Odessa. Meanwhile, to the southeast, the Third Ukrainian Army of Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky pushed across the plains of the Southern Ukraine toward the Black Sea port of Odessa from captured Nikolae.

In Bessarabia, a Soviet communique said, units of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's Second Ukrainian Army were within eight miles of the Odessa-Tiraspol railroad, last principal escape rail artery from the Odessa area.

Kovel in Danger. The Berlin radio last night indicated that the First Ukrainian Army had encircled Kovel, 170 miles from Warsaw in the east-central part of old Poland. The broadcast said that German troops in that city were being supplied by air. The Russians have not yet reported any near approach to Kovel.

HARD AIR BATTLE FOUGHT AS YANK BOMBERS POUND CENTRAL REICH

Fortresses Raid Germany, Liberators Hit at French Coast in 24th Major U. S. Air Operation of Month.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, March 29 (AP).—The German air force came up fighting today for the first time in six days to battle American Flying Fortresses which shot their way through to bomb Central Germany while American Liberators pounded the Pas de Calais invasion coast area for the sixty-eighth time in 106 days.

The Fortresses roared home with guns still warm, and their crews told of bitter engagements over a German target where the flak was moderate and 60 per cent cloud cover required overcast bombing technique.

News of hard fought sky battles over Westphalia was broadcast by the Germans as the American air force pressed the campaign described officially as "aimed primarily against the Luftwaffe on the ground and in the air."

It was this month's twenty-fourth major assault by United States bombers, a new monthly record in the offensive which Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle announced last night had destroyed more than 2100 German planes in the last eight weeks. This toll was taken by American airmen flying from Britain alone.

Fighter escorts accompanied the Fortresses into Germany.

Airmen returning from the Pas de Calais area told of extremely bad weather which prevented observation of bombing results, of heavy antiaircraft fire in most instances but no fighter opposition.

Lt. Robert W. Brown of Springfield, Mo., said "It seemed as if the clouds would break up just long enough to let the ground gunners get a bead on us."

In yesterday's raids on the four airfields in France, American fighters accompanied the bombers destroyed 30 German planes on the ground and damaged 20 more. Two American bombers and three fighters were lost.

Doolittle gave his figures on German planes destroyed during the last two months in a radio speech last night to the National Press Club in Washington, D. C. He said 37,000 tons of bombs had been dropped on Germany and occupied territory since Feb. 1 by American planes based in Britain.

The commander of the Eighth Army Air Force said an "invading force" of 170,000 men of the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces delivered this pounding.

Doolittle said that since Feb. 20, 16 major factories producing aircraft or integral parts and equipment for the German air force had either been destroyed or so severely damaged that production had ceased entirely or been greatly curtailed.

never did get it. He wanted you and the girls to use that money to buy the nice things you wanted or needed.

"I miss him like hell, but we will just have to keep our chins up. We have done that several times together, but this time it will be alone for the present. I am sorry that I am not with you, it would help us both, but we have to take life as it comes. Yes, I have always figured we had so many days to spend on this earth, do as we will with them. I know of no other way I would rather die, or my son, than for his country."

"I have never been able to understand why young people die, I guess I am not supposed to. I have lived to see a good many things that looked bad at the time turn out for the best later. This one, I will never be able to see. I had figured on trying to get out after this summer but I will stay for the duration now. I hope and believe you will understand. This is the first time in my life to know what the word hate means."

"We have left the Marshalls and tell Sterling that I will try to see Dick before I get back. I love you and the girls more than ever, if that is possible. This I promise, I will be back. You can count on that."

"Love, Earl."

Before receiving the father's letter, Mrs. Brown had written Worley:

"I suppose you know that my son, Pfc. Jack H. Brown, was killed in action? I want to thank you again for what you did for us in helping them to get together. We are strong believers in what will be will be—I think it was his time to die and he would have died at home just the same. I couldn't bear this if I didn't think that I am so very thankful his father was near when he died."

"If you have time, would you tell the Marine Corps officials who helped us that I thank them for being nice and generous to my Marines? I do appreciate all the nice things that were done for them."

"I haven't heard from his father yet, but he is a very strong-willed person and I feel sure this is his own individual, personal war from here on."

4261 YANK AIRMEN LOST IN EUROPE FEB. 20-MARCH 9

414 Bombers, 121 Fighters Missing in Period—Half of Men Believed to Be Alive as Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).

Reviewing the European aerial offensive, the Army reported yesterday that between Feb. 20 and March 9 this year the Army Air Forces lost 4261 airmen in 106 days of attacks against Germany, escorted by 10,356 fighter sorties, dropping 17,256 tons of bombs.

Bombers and fighters destroyed 1023 enemy fighters in the air during this period and 414 American heavy bombers and 121 fighters were lost.

Personnel losses totaled 4261 men, but on the basis of past experience, at least half of these are believed to be alive as prisoners.

Elimination of enemy air opposition to the Allied invasion forces in western Europe has been the main objective of the bomber offensive against Germany since last July 1, the Army said.

The campaign now has reached such a point, the report said, that the Nazis must decide whether to defend their factories or to hear their planes to meet the invasion.

In an analysis of the bomber strategy, the Army said that the continuing operations against aircraft factories are necessary because of the "tremendous recuperative powers" of German industry.

At the beginning of 1943, the Army reported, Germany set out to triple fighter production. By July 1 production was up 50 per cent and the Army Air Forces and the Royal Air Force—which up to then had concentrated on the submarine industry—began a systematic campaign against aircraft factories.

By Sept. 1, the bomber offensive had cut monthly production of single-engine German fighters to approximately three-fourths of the July 1 level. In all of 1943, the Army reported, the bomber attacks prevented production of an estimated 2500 fighter planes.

"New plants which were constantly thrown into operation provided replacement capacity, not expanded capacity," the report said.

Early this year the scale of the bomber attacks was increased enormously and as of March 1 the monthly production of single engine fighters had been cut two-thirds below the Jan. 1, 1944, level, two-engine fighter capacity slightly more, and bomber capacity by one-third, the review said.

"That does not mean, however," the Army explained, "that German combat aircraft production had been permanently reduced to that extent."

When a plant is bombed out, the Army explained, top-flight German production men rush in to determine whether it is better to rebuild there or move equipment and personnel.

23,000 U. S. TANKS SENT TO ALLIES IN 3 YEARS, 750,000 OTHER VEHICLES

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).

About 23,000 tanks and almost 750,000 other military vehicles have been sent from the United States to our allies since passage of the Lend-Lease act three years ago.

Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, disclosing this today, said more than 21,000 of the tanks and almost 500,000 of the other vehicles were sent under lend-lease. The Allies, he said, have received 1500 tanks and 250,000 trucks.

In addition $1,150,000,000 worth of tank, truck and other military motor vehicle engines and parts have been shipped or flown to the Allies. Of this amount, $800,000,000 went under lend-lease, Crowley said.

United States tank production during the three-year period totaled approximately 58,000, of which 35,000 were retained for American forces.

and would be used in special labor units."

Patterson added, however, it is reasonable to expect that most of the men directed to accept civilian employment would do so.

Amendment Held Desirable. He said he believed the plan could be put into operation through joint action of existing war agencies, although an amendment to the Selective Service Act "would be desirable."

Patterson estimated that about one million 4-F's capable of working are engaged in occupations not absolutely essential to the war, adding that it was a "matter of common knowledge that many of them are contributing nothing that is of material assistance to the men who are doing the fighting."

Farm Draft Plan Changed. Yielding to demands from agricultural state Senators, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, agreed today to leave to local draft boards the responsibility for deferment of farm workers.

Chairman Costello, (Dem.) California, said testimony given to the military committee in recent days—including a suggestion by WPE Chairman Donald M. Nelson that effective controls be established over 4-F's—had influenced many of his colleagues to believe that the time has arrived to "put many of these men in uniform so they can be used where they are needed in a non-combat capacity."

BULGARIAN WAR DECLARATION ON RUSSIA HINTED IN TURKEY

LONDON, March 29 (AP).—Crediting Moscow messages received in Ankara, the Ankara radio said today that Bulgaria has accepted closer collaboration with Germany. The radio added:

"This, if true, would mean a Bulgarian declaration of war on the Soviet Union."

It said all Rumanian newspapers today stressed the gravity of the war situation and appealed to the people for unity.

PLAN FOR NORWAY'S RETURN TO CIVIL RULE AGREED ON

LONDON, March 29 (AP).—Britain and the Norwegian government have agreed on methods for Norway's return to normal after the war, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been authorized to sign the compact, it was learned today. It deals with the scope of military authority after the Germans are driven out and with the means through which civil authorities will take over.

Russia is reported to have agreed tentatively to the plan.

NEW NAZI LAND MINES BALK MAGNETIC FINDER

Explosive in Nonmetallic Container—Portable Pillboxes Used.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).—A new German weapon—a small but deadly land mine which cannot be located by detection instruments—has appeared on the Italian front.

Lt. Col. Alfred K. du Moulin, back from observation duty with the Thirty-fourth Infantry, told of the mine in a report to Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding General of Army ground forces.

Known as the "wooden shoe mine," it is an antipersonnel device made of plywood or plastic and is called "the worst curse" of all the enemy's weapons. Until the nonmetallic mine appeared, engineers and infantry moving out in the wake of retreating enemy forces could locate buried explosives with detectors actuated by a magnetic current.

The du Moulin reports, "look like an innocent bar of soap but has enough TNT in it to blow off a man's foot when stepped on."

A kettle-shaped, portable pillbox "is one of the most astonishing defenses the Germans have developed," the observer said. Although it is about 5 feet in diameter and 6 feet high, only the 6-inch concrete dome and machine-gun mount are visible when the pillbox is sunk into place. Camouflage makes it all but indistinguishable beyond 10 yards. The pillbox is equipped with a bellows to cool the gun and the two-man crew is kept warm by a small stove.

"Our men can destroy it with Molotov cocktails (containers of gasoline which are ignited and tossed onto or into the target) after not making it," Du Moulin said, "but the hills are so studied with them that there always seems to be another one behind the pillbox just smashed."

The Nazis are adapting every feature of the rugged Italian terrain to defensive use, he declared. "Our doughboys are glad when the Jerries mount an offensive—then they can see them," Du Moulin asserted.

NEW NAVY-STANDARD DEAL FOR ELK HILLS IS ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).—A newly drawn Navy-Standard Oil of California contract for operation of the Elk Hills (Cal.) naval reserve would enhance Standard's "monopolistic control" and necessitate a legislative change in the national oil conservation policy, Representative Voorhis (Dem.), California, contended today.

Voorhis, whose criticism of the original Navy-Standard contract resulted in a presidential order and a verdict of "illegal" by the Justice Department, made his statement at a House Public Lands Committee hearing.

Nazis Say Stalin Is Ill.

LISBON, March 29 (AP).—The German news agency said today that Premier Marshal Stalin is ill following a collapse in February and that "doctors fear he may have another collapse soon." (There has been no confirmation of his report from Moscow or other Allied quarters.)

LEFT WING WINS NEW YORK LABOR PARTY CONTROL

Losing Faction Maintained Such Result Might Affect Roosevelt's Chance in State.

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP).—

Left wing forces held control of the American Labor party today after a bitter intraparty fight which the losing right wing had said might affect President Roosevelt's chances of winning New York's 47 electoral votes next November.

The American Labor party provided the margin by which Roosevelt carried New York in 1940. A month ago today the party teamed up with the Democrats to give a Tammany district leader victory in a special congressional election.

The left wing, which had the support of Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, says it elected in yesterday's primary 625 of the 750 members of the State committee—the body which nominates the party's presidential candidate.

Both factions have urged a fourth term for President Roosevelt, but the right wing contended a left wing victory would mean "our party is being invaded by the Communist party."

A right wing election eve statement said "we wanted to hand President Roosevelt a nomination immune from criticism and attack."

In conceding victory to the rival group, George S. Counts, State chairman of the party, and Alex Rose, State secretary, said that "from now on the A. L. P. will be controlled by Earl Browder (Communist leader) no matter who will be put up as its front."

The right wing had argued that with Communist control "Roosevelt will be unable to accept an American Labor party nomination."

Hillman, whom the right wing had never called a Communist, said the vote "shatters the fiction carefully developed by the party leadership that if they were defeated it would be as a result of a Communist vote."

Hyman Blumberg, campaign manager for the Hillman forces, said the victory would revitalize the party and that 600,000 labor party voters would be cast in the presidential election.

Whether the right wing leaders would withdraw from the party was not known. Counts said during the campaign that "we liberals cannot remain in the party and serve as a front for the Communists."

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (AFL), and a right-wing supporter, said last night "we will stand by what we have said" but he did not elaborate.

Democrats elected 86 and Republicans 85 district delegates to the party conventions. Most of them are thought by politicians to favor President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Presidential nominations. The State committee will name delegates to the New York state convention and the Democratic convention and 93 in the Republican.

The convention delegates are not instructed, but Dewey supporters think he can get 50 of the Republican delegation. One supporter of Wendell L. Willkie thought Willkie could count on at least 12.

YANK GUERRILLAS WITH TITO FORCES BATTLING NAZIS

Specially Trained Units Inflicting Considerable Losses on Foe Along Dalmatian Coast.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BARI, Italy, March 3 (Delayed) (AP).—American combat troops specially trained for guerrilla warfare are operating with Yugoslav Partisans and British forces in the Dalmatian coastal zone, it can now be revealed.

Special American raiding groups were first sent across the Adriatic several months ago and were welcomed by the Yugoslavs with a band.

In frequent brushes with German patrols, mixed British-American and Partisan detachments have taken scores of prisoners and inflicted considerable casualties. Their own losses are authoritatively described as extremely light.

A veteran of World War I heads an American outfit whose Dalmatian operations are co-ordinated under a senior British officer in the field.

Important Commando-type missions have been completed successfully by the troops.

The commander said: "Having seen for ourselves, we have the highest admiration for the accomplishments of Marshal Tito's Yugoslav patriots. Our American soldiers have been under fire with both Yugoslavs and British troops and there is complete understanding and confidence among the fighting men of all three nationalities."

"As on the Anzio beachhead, where Yanks and Tommies fought shoulder to shoulder against encircling Germans, the Dalmatian coast is the scene of another Allied struggle in which it's a case of all for one and one for all."

German troops have recaptured the island of Rab off the Croatian coast about 30 miles south of Trieste, a communiqué broadcast from the headquarters of Marshal Tito acknowledged last night.

The communiqué gave no details but said the Nazis were marshaling large forces in the vicinity of Fiume, directly opposite the island off the Croatian shore.

FRENCHMAN WHO RECRUITED FOR NAZIS CONDEMNED TO DIE

ALGERIA, March 29 (AP).—A special French military tribunal today convicted Lt. Col. Pierre Cristofini of treason and sentenced him to death for his activities in Tunisia late in 1942 and early in 1943.

Cristofini was charged with recruiting Frenchmen to serve with the German armies on the eastern front. He admitted the charge in testimony.

Democracy elected 86 and Republicans 85 district delegates to the party conventions. Most of them are thought by politicians to favor President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Presidential nominations. The State committee will name delegates to the New York state convention and the Democratic convention and 93 in the Republican.

The convention delegates are not instructed, but Dewey supporters think he can get 50 of the Republican delegation. One supporter of Wendell L. Willkie thought Willkie could count on at least 12.

RED PAPER HINTS SATELLITES STILL MAY QUIT THE AXIS

Izvestia Editorial Says Door Hasn't Been Closed to Finland, Rumania and Bulgaria.

By DAVID M. NICHOL

The Chicago Daily News-Post Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1944.

MOSCOW, March 29.—An editorial in Izvestia, Government organ, indicates the Soviets have not closed their doors to negotiations with Finland or to any other Nazi satellite country prepared to translate into action a desire to get out of the war.

Finland, Rumania and Bulgaria are all mentioned by name. Izvestia warns that "time is running out," saying this is not the stage of war where protracted negotiations can be undertaken.

Finland already has temporized almost six weeks with an armistice offer. For Rumania, Izvestia says, the emergency should be equally clear, with the Red Army occupying a long sector of the Prut riverbank. "Today, a vassal, tomorrow a slave," the paper declares.

Cites Italy's Experience. The Izvestia editorial, one of the most important to appear in the Soviet press for some time, draws on the experience of Italy and Hungary to illustrate the inevitable fate awaiting the satellites as the Nazis try desperately to ward off final defeat.

It analyzes at some length the argument of Hitler's supporters within the satellites that collaboration with Hitler is the only way to prevent their countries from becoming fields of bloody battle and the loss of the last shreds of their independence. This, says Izvestia, is precisely the way in which it will be accomplished.

Their only possible hope of preserving their national existence, Izvestia declares, lies in a break with Germany and armed opposition to Nazi armies, if that should be required. Unfortunately, it says, opponents of this view exist not only within the satellite countries, but among certain circles in the United Nations themselves.

An obvious fallacy, Izvestia says, is the argument that these nations cannot defend themselves against the Germans. Pointing out that the Nazis already are heavily involved and have suffered smashing defeats in the Ukraine, Izvestia quotes the foreign press to the effect that only six German and two Rumanian divisions, all second grade, were used to another Hungary, whereas Rumania is reported to have 15 divisions and Bulgaria 20.

Izvestia declares the satellites have the choice of being occupied by the Nazis without resistance, automatically making their territory a theater of future hostilities, or breaking with Germany in defense of their very existence. From Germany, it says, they can hope only for "treachery, violence and robbery."

The United States has in the past expressed hope for a Russian-Polish settlement and once offered its good offices toward restoring diplomatic relations. Russia rejected the offer.

POLE IN RUSSIA SAYS HIS COUNTRY WILL GET FREE ACCESS TO BALTIC

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP).

ANDREI WITOS, vice-president of the Soviet-sponsored Union of Polish Patriots, was quoted in a broadcast from Moscow yesterday as saying that Poland's eastern frontiers would be laid down by agreement with Russia, "just as its southern frontiers will be the result of an agreement with the government of Czechoslovakia."

Witos spoke before the Third Polish Division in Russia at its swearing-in ceremony Sunday. Quoting excerpts from the address provided by Tass news agency, the broadcast reported Witos said that "Pomerania and parts of East Prussia will be within our (Polish) boundaries," giving Poland unbridled access to the Baltic Sea.

NAPLES, March 29 (AP).—King Vittorio Emanuele, pledging that "the crown will faithfully follow the popular will," has proposed election, within four months after the war, of an Italian parliament which "shall freely and completely discuss institutions (such as the monarchy) and reforms."

(This could mean that the King, whose abdication has been demanded repeatedly by the leaders of the foremost anti-Fascist political parties in liberated Italy, would be willing to step down if the proposed parliament voted for it.)

The King's personal program for the government of Italy, presented by Interior Minister Vito Reale at a rally of the Italian democratic party in Potenza Sunday, also called for formation of a government with "a larger base" after the Allies capture Rome, with the present ministry to continue in power until that time.

(A government with a larger base was proposed months ago in Naples, but political leaders, such as pre-Fascist Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, refused to take part in it unless the King, whom they regard as tainted with Fascism, abdicated.)

The program was outlined in a letter which the King sent to Lt. Gen. Frank N. M. McFarlane, deputy president of the Allied Control Commission, last Oct. 21. "Once Rome has been liberated from the Germans, there shall be constituted a ministry with a larger base which shall include representatives of all parties, but no one in any way compromised by Fascism," it stated.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 29.—Baltimore, with a public school system that operates in two separate and distinct divisions, one for white and the other for Negro children on all levels of education, has been under the successful control of Mayor-appointed boards of School Commissioners since 1899.

These boards which, according to specific provisions of the city charter, must be free of political and religious influences and divorced from city hall interference, have been so fruitful of beneficial results that membership is considered a distinction and accepted readily by men and women of high caliber.

Because of decades of general interest in the public schools of the city, the boards have been rightly considered a major factor in municipal government and, as such, have been held to strict accountability by a public whose vigilance in school affairs has been rarely relaxed.

Politicians Rebuffed.
There have been times through the years when mayors and politicians have attempted to intrude politically or to dictate policies to the boards, but public clamor has had its effect. Moreover, when boards themselves have shown tendencies to digress from established policies and rules, community uproar has been frequent, but not always, compelled boards to reconsider their actions.

Consequently, Mayors have hesitated to appoint to the School Board persons whose integrity, ability and standing in the community might be questioned. Any Mayor resorting to political manipulation in School Board appointments would bring down upon himself the wrath of the public and press, which, in the end, are the controlling factors in keeping both the board and politicians, as far as school affairs are concerned, in line.

No mayoral candidate presents a campaign platform to the electorate without a plank giving assurance that he will not interfere with the activities of the public schools or of the School Board. Furthermore, every Mayor has been cognizant of the influence of the more than 3000 independent-minded teachers in the school system and the damage they could do any politician who might try to enforce his will upon them, directly or indirectly.

These teachers have their own organization, the Public School Teachers' Association, which on occasion has openly fought the Mayor and politicians when the teachers thought they had overstepped the bounds of propriety.

Civic Group Setup.
Moreover, there was organized many years ago a public school association composed of civic-minded citizens interested in the welfare of the schools with an executive secretary, Mrs. William Bauernschmidt, who never fails, when she thinks the occasion requires, to speak her mind either on the public platform or the radio. She is feared by politicians but she has no fear of them. Until recently, she attended all School Board meetings at some of which she lectured the board when she thought it remiss in its duties.

Until 1899 Baltimore's school boards were political footballs. The City Council elected a member from each ward of the city. The result was obvious. Teachers and administrative personnel never were sure of their positions from one year to another. They owed their posts, in large measure, to influence with ward executives or with attaches at the city hall.

Finally, during the administration of a Mayor Thomas G. Hayes, in 1899, the city charter was revised. Because of public discontent and of Hayes' determination to rid the school of political domination, there was included in the charter a provision for a new system of school control.

The charter provided and still provides for a rotating school board of nine members, including the president, selected from the city at large and appointed in groups of three for terms of six years. The charter stipulates they must be appointed without political or religious bias and without regard to their religious or political affiliations. However, the first six months of terms are probationary periods during which the Mayor may remove new members without cause.

Complete Autonomy.
The board has complete autonomy over its administrative and financial affairs. It is answerable to nobody in the municipal government, not even the Board of Estimates which approves the annual city budget.

A recent example proves the case. Last fall the school board increased the salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction by $2000. The Board of Estimates reduced the salary to its original

Of Man River's working season of 1944 has begun, with the upper Mississippi open two weeks ahead of the average date of past years, and eight days earlier than last year.

Lake Pepin, a wide place in the river between St. Paul and Winona, Minn., was the bottleneck until the Coast Guard icebreaker Fern rammed its 85-ton plow through the ice there yesterday. The leased tugboat Tom Sawyer of the Federal Barge Line fleet, also provided with a plow, followed the Fern, and soon the Demopolis, Huck Finn, Helena, Wheelock Whitney and Tri-Cities were blowing their whistles in a joyous procession through the opened channel, on their way to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The Tom Sawyer stayed in Lake Pepin to deal with any attempted comeback of winter. Capt. Beck with Jordan, acting District Coast Guard Officer of the Ninth Naval District at St. Louis, commended the officers and crews of the upper Mississippi ice fleet, and of the Roosevelt, which aided in earlier operations on the Illinois river, and acknowledged the co-operation of the United States Engineer Corps.

figure, $10,000, when the school board's budget was submitted. Subsequently, the city council approved the action of the Board of Estimates. The board of estimates, which passed the budget, the school board restored the $2000 increase and nobody in the municipal government could do anything about it. The Mayor even took occasion to explain that he was powerless in the situation. The board controls its own finances, he emphasized.

The board does not name its president; he is designated by the Mayor who does not act independently when making board appointments. For many years it has been the custom of the Mayor—there is no legal requirement for this—to appoint a nominating committee of prominent citizens. They study the qualifications of men and women brought to their attention or of their own selection and submit a list of nominees to the Mayor. He, in turn, appoints from this list.

Negro Names Submitted.
Such a list was submitted to the Mayor by his citizens' committee last week for the appointment of a new board president and two new members. This list included the names of four prominent Negroes, one of them being the president of Morgan College, a State-operated institution. Also on the list was a Negro president of an insurance company. Both had large groups of advocates urging their appointment. The Public School Association charged before the Mayor that the insurance executive had political affiliations which the association disapproved. Mrs. Bauernschmidt informed the Mayor that if this man were appointed the association would fight his confirmation by the council.

Meanwhile, the nominating committee in its report to the Mayor carefully pointed out that the appointment of either the college president or insurance executive might lead to eventual factional differences in the Negro population. The Mayor, heeding this advice, passed over both and appointed a Negro graduate of Yale University law school. He was the first Negro ever appointed to the school board. There was no public dissent.

For many years the president of the board has been a lawyer. The president of the Johns Hopkins University is a member as have been his two predecessors. Two or more members are women and at least one member is a physician, usually a pediatrician. There also is a Catholic and a Jew on the board to balance the Protestant members. The remaining members are men prominent in business, industry and finance. Last week's appointments included the dean of the School of Dentistry of the University of Maryland. The new president is a prominent attorney active in civic, youth and welfare programs who on several occasions has been boomed by the local bar association for membership on the supreme bench of Baltimore, the high court of the city.

The school boards of Baltimore have not been perfect. They have had their faults and their omissions, yet, when all is considered, they have given the schools competent and successful administrations—far superior to any that might be expected were they in control of politicians.

NINE CHARGED WITH PLOT TO EMBEZZLE UNION FUNDS

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).—Eight international and local officers of the AFL-Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union were named with Kelly, former treasurer of the Washington local, in an indictment today charging conspiracy to embezzle union funds.

The international officers named in the indictment were Joseph V. Morello, president; Achilles Persson, secretary-treasurer, and John W. Garvey, general representative and organizer.

The indictment, returned by the Federal Grand Jury, charged Kelly, who, officials said, has been missing for several months, with using union funds to purchase liquor and to equip and furnish a Washington night club. The international officers named in the indictment, all of whom live in Washington, were charged with aiding and abetting the alleged conspiracy by failure to adhere to the union's constitution and thus making possible financial manipulations by others.

COURT OVERRIDES
CHAPLIN PLEA FOR DIRECTED VERDICT

Sustains Both Mann Act
Counts — Defense
Sought to Kill Charges on Technicality.

LOS ANGELES, March 29 (AP).—Charlie Chaplin's attorney failed today in his effort to have two Mann Act charges against the actor dismissed.

United States District Judge J. F. T. O'Connor denied Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler's motion for a directed verdict of acquittal on both counts—one based on a trip to New York in 1942 by Joan Berry, Chaplin's former petting partner, and the other on the return to Beverly Hills.

The court's ruling as to the second count was "without prejudice," leaving the way open for Giesler to renew the dismissal motion with preference to that charge.

It came after Giesler, in answering the arguments of United States Attorney Charles H. Carr in opposition to a dismissal, had declared the evidence showed Chaplin did not have relations with Miss Berry following her return from New York until after she had made a trip to Tulsa, Ok., and came back.

Argument by Prosecutor.
"There was a contract in existence," Carr said. "Whether Chaplin intended to make a picture and whether he was sincere in saying that he wanted to make a star of her—those things go into the realm of collateral matters."

"On Sept. 26, after she had asked him many times to marry her to New York, he said: 'Would you be surprised if I let you go?'"

"What was the purpose of Chaplin letting her go at that time? He was breaking her contract. He had refused all along to let her go. Now he was going back to New York to make a picture and he said: 'I want you to be near me.'"

"She had been near him a long time in Los Angeles. The jury might draw the conclusion that it was for the same purpose that he wanted her near him on the trip. 'There is a little key that I think will unlock the lock.'"

"In December, 1942, he told her he was going to rehabilitate her. He put her on $25 a week if she would move over to the studio club on 'condition that you don't bother me and only see me when I want to see you.'"

Testimony of Butler.
The motion for the directed verdict was made late yesterday after Chaplin's attorney, Edward Chaney, testifying for the prosecution, had said Chaplin had admitted within his hearing that he had engaged in intimacies both in New York and in Beverly Hills with Miss Berry.

Giesler did not deny that the alleged act had occurred in New York. "For the purposes of our argument," he told the Court, "you must assume that the act took place."

He argued that the relationship between Miss Berry, 24 years old, and Chaplin, who is 30 years older, could have been pursued "undisturbed, indefinitely and anywhere," and did not necessitate a trip to New York or anywhere else.

He asserted the acts charged to Chaplin did not fall within the purview of the Mann Act, which forbids the transportation of a woman in interstate commerce for immoral purposes.

Six Bills for Absentee
Balloting for Men in Military Service Now
Go to House.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 29.—Gov. Donnell's six bills to make more liberal provision for voting by Missourians absent from the State in military service were passed today by the Senate with a dissenting vote. The bills go to the House.

Liberalization of the absentee voting laws for citizens in service was one of the principal factors in convening the present special session of the Legislature by Donnell.

The bills make no change in the existing provisions for absentee voting by civilians. Under constitutional provisions absentee voting by civilians is limited to those who are absent from their homes but still within the State on election day.

As passed by the Senate, without debate, the bills permit a period of at least 79 days for sending a primary election absentee ballot to a serviceman and return of the ballot to local election officials by 6 p. m. on the day following the election.

As to general elections the bills provide a period of at least 69 days for sending an absentee ballot to the applicant and its return to election officials.

Under present laws the maximum period for applying for sending and return of an absentee ballot for persons in military service, is 31 days.

Filing Date Change.
One proposed change affects all candidates for party nominations in a state-wide primary. This amendment fixes the expiration of the period for filing declarations of candidacy for a continuing effort for the last Tuesday in April of years in which a state primary is held.

The present law fixes the expiration time at 60 days before the primary election.

This provision, if finally approved, will require candidates to file earlier than heretofore. The primary election this year falls on Aug. 1 and under the present law the period for filing declarations of candidacy would expire on June 1.

It was stated that the railroads had been improving their compliance through that time, and that the enforcement policy toward them, as toward industries and individuals, was not to prosecute when a continuing effort for improvement was made. The Counselor recommended that no prosecution be now undertaken for past violations by the roads.

Letter to the Mayor.
Schleifer, in his letter to the Mayor, said as to the suggested suspension of the ordinance:

"I believe that, if such action is taken by you, it will not be necessary for Federal agencies to invoke their authority, and you and people will be in a position to buy what they please from whom they please, in keeping with the best principles of the American free enterprise system."

Schleifer said his request was made because of the effect of the city ordinance on transportation conditions. The ordinance prohibits use of Illinois smoky coal, except where stokers or other mechanical devices are installed, and forbids the sale to and use by those not so equipped, of any high volatile coal, thus requiring the use of fuel shipped from West Virginia, Arkansas and other fields more distant than those of Southern Illinois.

He said the Solid Fuels Administration in Washington estimated that there would be a 20-million-ton deficiency of coal in the 1944-45 heating season, and that this made it necessary to take steps against a transportation failure as to the supply which will be available.

"While Federal agencies are reluctant to take any action," Schleifer wrote, "the Solid Fuels Administration of War and the ODT could prohibit movement of coal from distant origins."

"In view of the anticipated national coal deficiency, we fear it will be extremely difficult to supply St. Louis with coal this year."

Number of Smoke Palls.
Schleifer cited the fact that "municipalities adjacent to St. Louis" have modified their smoke ordinances for the duration, "for the purpose of co-operating wholeheartedly in conserving coal and transportation."

He said also that, "according to St. Louis newspaper," the number of smoke palls officially reported has been little reduced since the ordinance has been in effect, and suggests that, "if this is true, apparently the ordinance has not accomplished its purpose."

As the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers have pointed out, the old-time smoke nuisance has not existed since enforcement of the ordinance.

The City Counselor's communication to the Mayor, as to Terminal and other railroad violations of the smoke ordinance, was based on reports of the Smoke Commission, setting forth that the railroads had a compliance record of 97 per cent, as compared with a record of 66 per cent by industry.

"The courts have been a last resort," the Smoke Department was quoted as stating. "As long as a railroad, an individual or a private citizen showed willingness to improve his condition and his boiler plant, we did not file in court against him. Only when he failed to make improvement did we prosecute."

COAL MAN, AS ODT OFFICIAL,
RENEWES SMOKE LAW ATTACK

Schleifer Asks if Ordinance Can Be Suspended for Duration—Mayor to Call Meetings,
Trip to Washington Possible.

Fred A. Schleifer, Associate Director of the Division of Railway Transport, Office of Defense Transportation, has renewed, in his official position at Washington, the attack on the St. Louis city smoke ordinance which he made two years ago as traffic manager of the Franklin County Coal Co., in Southern Illinois, and chairman of the Midwest Shippers' Advisory Board in Chicago.

Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann received a letter today from Schleifer, on ODT stationery, asking his view as to "the possibility of suspending the ordinance for the duration."

The letter to the Mayor was in milder terms than Schleifer's statement of June 1942, which attacked the St. Louis measure as a "dictator ordinance," and which caused James L. Ford Jr., chairman of the Citizens' Smoke Elimination Committee, to ask whether Schleifer spoke as "a patriot, a transportation man or a coal dealer."

The Mayor said he would call a meeting of the Smoke Elimination Committee and of the Citizens' Wartime Fuel Committee, of which Roosevelt C. Hobbs is chairman, and that "a trip to Washington" might follow. It is recognized that the recent death of Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, who believed it possible to supply the city with smokeless fuel without disrupting the transportation system, may have changed the situation at Washington.

Terminal Violations.
The Mayor received, at the same time, a reply to his request that the City Counselor's office investigate admitted violations of the smoke ordinance by the Terminal Railroad Association, and advise him whether prosecutions should be instituted.

Joseph F. Holland, in his reply, stated that, from May, 1938, to last January, 4245 violations of the ordinance by railroads had been reported, and no court prosecutions instituted.

Under present laws the maximum period for applying for sending and return of an absentee ballot for persons in military service, is 31 days.

SLATTERY CAN'T KEEP SECRET, SAYS WICKARD

Secretary Declares REA Chief
Showed Confidential Reports to Employees.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard told a Senate agriculture subcommittee today that Harry Slattery, Rural Electrification Administrator, could "not be trusted with confidential reports because he showed them to all the employees."

Testifying before the subcommittee investigating REA activities, including alleged favoritism to the use of copper over aluminum and efforts to remove Slattery as administrator, Wickard said:

"Instance after instance when we would talk about confidential matters, Mr. Slattery would misconstrue our remarks. And every time we would try to take disciplinary action of some kind or another we would find him opposed to it."

"He would tell the employees everything not only about formal reports but other matters. The employees would be so embarrassed that we could get no information from them. The result was that we had to proceed with caution."

The subcommittee, at an executive session, decided to ask the Senate for an additional $7500 appropriation to complete its investigation.

REA headquarters are in the Boatmen's Bank Building, St. Louis.

10-MAN STRIKE HALTS PLANT
MAKING REFINERY EQUIPMENT

Production of equipment for oil refineries, vital to the war effort, was halted at the Key Co. in East St. Louis and 250 foundry workers were thrown out of work today by a strike of 10 crane operators, a spokesman for the company told a Post-Dispatch reporter.

Two of the crane operators, members of the AFL Electrical Workers' Union, Local 274, walked off their jobs yesterday, the spokesman said, and the eight others left their jobs in sympathy. The two who precipitated the strike had asked for wage increases that had not been granted.

When the crane operators did not come to work today, an officer of the company said, it was necessary to shut down the foundry, which is serviced by cranes. Efforts to settle the differences were to be made today at a meeting of union officers and company representatives. Union officers could not be reached for comment.

BRITISH PUT JEEP ON RAILS

LONDON, March 29 (AP).—The famed jeep, for which the American Army has found a wide variety of uses, has now been adapted by the British for railway work. Equipped with flanged wheels, which can be installed in a short time, the jeep is able to speed along at 42 miles per hour unhindered by badly aligned tracks or grade crossings, a British Army announcement said.

SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

Barrels

If you were in a quiz contest and were asked, "Name the raw materials out of which whiskey is made," I am afraid there would be no "pay-off" if you did not include "barrels" in your answer.

The barrel is more than a container for storing whiskey. It contributes definite flavor elements to the whiskey. In the distilling business, these are known as "extractives."

A great deal of study is spent on barrels in a modern distillery because there are so many variables in wood—so little uniformity. For instance, barrels whose staves were made from oak grown on the top of a ridge differ greatly from those made from oak grown on the middle slopes of the hill or in the bottoms. Various degrees of exposure to wide, amount of sunshine, water, difference in soil composition, all have an effect on the characteristics of plant life. So the ingredients extracted by the whiskey from the wood have variable flavor characteristics.

Then there is the matter of the char in the barrel, a fraction of an inch difference in the depth of the char makes a difference in the end-product.

And, if you were asked, "How long should a whiskey be kept in the wood before it becomes a good 'whiskey'?" what would your answer be? Will you let us help you? The age when whiskey becomes "right" is also variable. Some whiskeys, like some wines, too, reach their peak of maturity earlier than others. For instance, Bourbon whiskey, made principally from corn, usually matures more rapidly than Rye. Bourbon whiskey which has been reposing in the wood for four years may be equivalent in maturity to Rye at five or six years.

While it is true that all whiskey improves in quality in the wood, there comes a time when it reaches its peak of perfection, after which it either remains static or deteriorates in quality. Remember, whiskey draws certain flavor extractives out of the barrel staves.

It is good to remember then, that age is not the sole determining factor in the quality of a whiskey. The expert might pass up a whiskey of greater age for one of lesser age, when the average layman would boast of the venerable years of his whiskey without taking other important factors into consideration.

All of these variables are important to the modern distiller. The barrels are typed, and the whiskey is typed according to age and dominant characteristics. And out of all this comes a "library" of whiskey, catalogued and indexed for the expert blender whom you never see or know, but whom you compliment quite unconsciously when you say, "Gee, this is a fine drink of blended whiskey!"

McMillen Tells Chemurgic
Council of Advantages of Research.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

No permanent peace can be expected as long as poverty can be incited to envy abundance, Wheeler McMillen, president of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, said today at the opening session of a three-day conference of his organization at Hotel Statler.

"When men and nations once learn that power over nature pays better than power over people," he said, "then there may be some hope that they will set themselves to produce their ways out of poverty and misery."

Stressing his doctrine of farm prosperity through the use of farm products as industry's raw materials, McMillen declared that realization of the American ideal, demanding that every person who wants to work be able to find rewarding work to do, can be accomplished only in proportion as men can command the materials and forces of nature. The real hope for the future, he said, is in the research laboratory.

Editor of Farm Journal and Farmer's Wife, McMillen advocates state-owned laboratories identified with state universities as an important phase of post-war development. Commenting upon the work being done now in laboratories of manufacturing corporations, state agricultural experiment stations, and Federal projects, he pointed out that a state-owned research laboratory could carry on detailed studies appropriate to the needs and resources of its particular section. "The more important function," he said, "would be providing facilities for privately financed research of small businesses that cannot afford the expensive setups in the larger corporations."

McMillen, who arrived in St. Louis wearing a hat which he said was 30 per cent skimmed milk, urged co-operation of agriculture, labor and industry. "They will all profit more from enlarging the national pie than by fighting over the cut," he said. Forty states will be represented by prominent industrialists, scientists, and agricultural leaders.

Allied artillery scattered a German infantry formation taking positions for an attack three miles west of Cisterna in the beachhead below Rome. Antiaircraft batteries downed four out of 25 air raiders and Spitfire patrols destroyed three more. All of the German bombs fell into the sea without hitting any ships.

Allied planes flew more than 1500 sorties yesterday, shooting down 13 enemy craft against a loss of 10. About 40 German planes were sighted over the battle area.

The Berlin radio said a German raiding party landed on the island of Gorgona in the Ligurian sea Monday night and destroyed an Allied radio station. Gorgona is about 20 miles southwest of Leghorn, Italy, and about 37 miles northeast of Corsica.

HAS NOMINATION
IF HE WANTS IT

Check-up of Delegates
Indicates He Could Win on First Ballot at Convention.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt apparently can say the word and win renomination on the first ballot at the Democratic national convention, a check of preliminary delegate lineups indicated today.

With strength manifest in all sections of the country, fourth-term backers figured that as of today they could count on a minimum of 604 of the convention's 1176 votes if the President decides to run.

Thus far Roosevelt has the public support of 116 of the 142 Democratic delegates chosen, including 10 each from Maine, Arizona and New Hampshire and 86 elected yesterday in New York's primaries. He also apparently will be backed by 10 more New York delegates to be chosen at a state convention.

To this nucleus of 126, the fourth-term adherents are adding 478 from 17 states which they believe will send delegations that will vote almost solidly for the President if he becomes a candidate. A few defections here and there would almost certainly be made up from other states not included in the survey, they said.

Preliminary steps already have been taken by party leaders in 11 of the 17 states to line up solid delegates for a fourth term. These include Pennsylvania with 72 votes, California with 52, Illinois with 58, Ohio with 52, New Jersey with 34, Wisconsin with 26, Oklahoma, 22, Connecticut, 18, West Virginia, 15, Nebraska, 12, and Vermont, six.

In six states where the delegate selecting machinery is only now beginning to function, the fourth term supporters are confident they can get another 108 votes. These include Tennessee's 26, Alabama's 24, Iowa's 20, Washington's 18, Colorado's 12 and Wyoming's eight.

Even some outspoken opponents of the fourth term concurred in these estimates. For instance, Senator Johnson (Dem.) Colorado, who said a fourth term would be a period of defeat and disintegration for the party, told a reporter he had no doubt Colorado's delegates would support Roosevelt on the first ballot. Senator Gillette (Dem.) Iowa, a fourth-term critic, said Iowa's group undoubtedly would be for the President, might even be so instructed by the state convention.

CHURCHILL CALLS FOR CONFIDENCE VOTE IN COMMONS

alteration in Government business. It would not be possible for the Government to leave matters where they stood.

"At this very serious time in the progress of the war there must be no doubt of the support which the government enjoy from the house."

The setback yesterday, overriding the opposition of Education Minister Harold Butler, was the first defeat of Churchill's government since it was formed four years ago.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell, who led the fight for equal pay for women teachers, sought again to keep the issue separate from the question of confidence.

He asked the Prime Minister "if he could find it possible to distinguish between a deliberate vote of the house on a domestic issue and any lack of confidence by the house in the government of general issues."

"I am afraid I cannot alter in any way the statement I have made," Churchill replied, stating that Commons after conferring for hours with the war cabinet about the government's position. It was reported that Butler had offered his resignation at the cabinet meeting, but this later was denied with the explanation that he regarded the vote as a rebuke to the government rather than to himself personally.

The Education Minister had maintained that acceptance of the amendment would jeopardize the government's war principle.

The Prime Minister himself was not present when the vote, which cut across party lines, was taken. Announcement of the outcome was greeted with a cheer from some Labor members, but it was quickly stifled as Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, his face grave, moved for adjournment.

Coming on the heels of Churchill's address to the nation last Sunday, the setback obviously was disturbing to government leaders and was the subject of widespread discussion in the London press.

"No government could lamely accept such a rebuff as yesterday's defeat on an important detail of the education bill," said the Daily Telegraph. "As those responsible for the defeat seemed to realize subsequently, such an event cannot be laughed off as a mere demonstration, or parliamentary government would become a farce."

The Daily Sketch, however, was the only London paper to use the word "crisis" in referring to the situation.

"If they (the government) doubt whether they still have the confidence of Commons and the country, they may put the matter to a test, after which a general election and return to party politics would be possible," it said. "A crisis might be avoided if the government undertook a prompt inquiry and a report to Commons."

Previous votes of confidence in the Churchill government resulted as follows:

May 13, 1940, on formation of the government, 381 to none; May 7, 1941, on the conduct of the Greek campaign, 447 to 3; Jan. 29, 1942, on the Far East campaign, 464 to 1; July 2, 1942, on the Libyan campaign and general conduct of the war, 276 to 26; Nov. 25, 1942, on equal compensation for men and women for war injuries, 228 to 95; Feb. 9, 1942, catering bill, 283 to 116; Feb. 19, 1943, on government handling of the Beveridge plan, 335 to 119.

DRESS FIRM ACCUSED OF NOT DISCLOSING RAYON CONTENT

A complaint charging Irene Karol, 808 Washington avenue, a dress manufacturing concern, with failing to disclose to purchasers the rayon content of certain garments has been filed by the Federal Trade Commission, it was announced today.

The complaint alleges that as a consequence of the firm's failure to disclose the rayon content the garments are "readily accepted by some members of the purchasing public as silk products." Substantial quantities of the concern's merchandise, the complaint asserted, have been purchased "in the belief they are composed wholly or partly of silk."

Max Orenstein, a partner in the company, told the Post-Dispatch he had filed an answer to the complaint, but declined to make further comment.

raise its own pigs in a house to be built on the grounds of Koch Hospital.

Dr. W. E. Hennerich, Assistant Hospital Commissioner, said in a letter to the board that guinea pigs had gone up in price from about 90 cents each to $1.50 or higher, so that the 1800 animals used each year cost about $2700.

He estimated that for $2500 the city could build a guinea pig house, stock it and feed the animals and employ a custodian for a year. Each year thereafter, he said, cost of raising the animals would be about $1200.

8 PCT. LOAN RATE CEILING PROPOSED FOR CONSTITUTION

McReynolds Amendment Would Eliminate Present 36-Pct.-a-Year Interest Charge.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 29.—

Former State Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, delegate-at-large to the Constitutional Convention, proposed to the convention today a provision prohibiting the Legislature from creating special interest rates for certain classes of loans, which would invalidate the present small-loan laws which permit a 36-per-cent-a-year lending rate.

His proposal would eliminate all existing class legislation which legalizes varying high interest charges on different types of loans, and require the Legislature to establish a single interest rate applicable to all loans.

The effect of his plan under present State laws would be to prohibit the making of loans in excess of the existing 3 per cent statutory rate for contract loans, making unconstitutional laws enacted by the Legislature under influence of the powerful small-loan lobby which permit these firms to charge 36 per cent interest on loans up to $100 and 30 per cent on loans from $100 to $500.

Fought Loan Lobby.
McReynolds, who consistently fought the small-loan lobby during his service in the Senate, told the convention that Missouri had "legalized loan sharks and protected them by law." He said the "iniquitous" small-loan interest rates strike at poor people who are least able to pay the high charges.

The profits made by the St. Louis small-loan group headed by Donald L. Barnes, president of the St. Louis Browns, and David Lichtenstein, Republican politician, and the salaries paid to these two top executives refute the contention that high interest rates are necessary to permit small-loan companies to remain in business, he said.

McReynolds asserted that reports of their companies showed that from 1935 through 1941 Barnes earned $23,000 from the companies and Lichtenstein $256,000. The public loan companies in Missouri have regularly earned enormous profits, although they had to pay 12 per cent interest for money borrowed from American Investment Co., the top holding firm in the Barnes-Lichtenstein group, to lend to the public at 30 and 36 per cent a year, he said.

Delegates James B. Finnegan and Edward J. Hogan of St. Louis who are sponsoring the fight for reduction of the interest rates, accepted McReynolds' plan, which is a substitute for a provision recommended by the Committee on Miscellaneous Provisions limiting interest on contract loans to 10 per cent a year discount, or approximately 19 per cent.

The small-loan lobby has been working at a distance most of the time since the convention met, few representatives of the companies having appeared in Jefferson City. This is in contrast to its on-the-ground activity during the session of the Legislature.

Firms Denounced by St. Louisan.
Delegate Jones H. Parker of St. Louis, former Speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, delivered a strong denunciation of the small-loan companies.

"The money changers have been too strong for the Legislature," he said. "They began way back in 1927 and 1929, when Leon Henderson and United States Senator Bennett Clark appeared lobbying for them as representatives of the Russell Sage Foundation."

"This is a matter of no small moment. The money borrowers are the poorest of the poor. There is nothing as low and mean and disgusting as the high interest rate these companies charge these helpless people."

"These companies are too powerful in the Legislature. We can't get anything on the statutes they don't want. Poor little Lahey (referring to Representative Raymond J. Lahey, who conducted a losing one-man fight against them in the last session) fought for the rights of the people, but they ran over him just as if he wasn't there."

Powerful Backing.
Delegate Stratford Lee Morton of St. Louis, a director of the Better Business Bureau, said that the small-loan companies had always been able to get powerful backing, the Bar Association, Chambers of Commerce and Better Business Bureaus.

"Roscoe Anderson and Pat O'Brien, former presidents of the Bar Association, will tell you the Bar Association was 'taken in,'" Morton said, "and I think the Better Business Bureau was 'taken in' also."

"Something must be done to free the Legislature from the pressure of this small-loan lobby. It is more far-reaching than the public utility lobby of a few years ago. That was largely local. This is national."

PASTOR AND WIFE ENJOINED BY GROUP IN OUSTER MOVE

Court Orders Them Not to Interfere With Meeting of Congregation.

The Rev. and Mrs. I. T. Moore, Negroes, were prohibited today by Circuit Judge William L. Mason from interfering in any way with a meeting tonight of the congregation of Calvary Baptist Church, 2822 Easton avenue, which had been called to oust the clergyman from the pulpit and his wife from leadership of the women's auxiliary.

John A. Davis, Negro attorney representing the congregation, asserted in his petition for a restraining order against the Moores that the pastor had said there would be no meeting unless he presided.

Davis said a resolution adopted by the church trustees and deacons last Monday charged the pastor with attempting to "take over sole control" of the church since he was called to the pulpit four years ago, and asserted there had been "no spiritual or material progress" under his pastorate.

That resolution, which calls for the Rev. Mr. Moore's resignation, is to be submitted to the several hundred members tonight, Davis said.

The resolution also asserted that the Rev. Mr. Moore "allowed his helpmate to serve in such a manner as to hinder the peace of members of the Women's Auxiliary." The result of the domination of the church by the pastor and his wife, the resolution said, has been "ill-will and un-Christian conditions."

The temporary restraining order included a clause restraining the Rev. Mr. Moore from "taking up collections."

THIRD PRODUCTION AWARD TO EMERSON ELECTRIC CO.

The War Department yesterday granted a third production award to the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., which is turning out power-driven turrets for aircraft at its plant at 8100 Florissant avenue, Ferguson. The company is exceeding by 50 per cent the production capacity for which the plant was originally constructed, company officials said.

The plant, which employs more than 10,000 workers, is building five types of turrets installed in Flying Fortress, Liberator, Martin Maulraider and Navy Avenger bombers. No date has been set for presentation of the second white star to the Army-Navy award first received Dec. 2, 1942.

ROGER LEWIS GARDNER

tion in 1940, and she committed suicide four days after he left her. One of the score of women he allegedly swindled lived in Kansas City. Using the name Richard C. Tardiff and posing as a Department of Justice agent, he obtained $730 from her. His record includes arrests and convictions in Paterson, N. J., for automobile theft; East Orange, N. J., for passing bad checks; Oklahoma, for impersonation, and in New Jersey on a morals charge.

Married St. Louis Woman and Disappeared Here in 1942.

Records of the F. B. I. in St. Louis show that Roger Lewis Gardner, arrested in New York today in connection with a Los Angeles murder, married Miss Doris Wall, 4512 Chouteau avenue, in May, 1942, and lived here for several weeks before leaving her. Miss Wall, a stenographer at the Gaylord Container Corp., 111 North Fourth street, declined to discuss the marriage other than to say it was performed by a justice of the peace. An officer of the Wildman Manufacturing Co., 905 Washington avenue, where she was employed at the time of her marriage, said she is 27 years old.

Agents of the F. B. I. were told by Miss Wall that she met Gardner in April, 1942, in a downtown cocktail lounge and that they were married after a courtship of 10 days. The pair moved to rooms at 4035 Miami street, Miss Wall related. Gardner told her, she said, that he was employed at the Weldon Spring Ordnance Works, but she became suspicious when he failed to leave for work at regular hours.

Discovering one day that he owned an expensive stop watch, Miss Wall continued, she confirmed her suspicions about his whereabouts during the day and found he usually spent the morning at the Fairmount racetrack near Collinsville, clocking the horses, and the afternoon placing bets there.

The woman from whom they rented rooms reported a diamond engagement ring and a wedding ring were missing, and Miss Wall, on searching Gardner's trousers' pockets, found tickets from a downtown pawnbroker. She confronted Gardner with the tickets, and accused him of taking the rings. He then left the house and did not return. A week or 10 days later she met him on the street, she said, and he asked her to go to Memphis, Tenn., with him. She refused, and did not see him again. Last November she instituted divorce proceedings.

CIO POLITICAL ACTION GROUP RED, DIES SAYS

mittie commenting that "although Murray and Hillman are alleged that it was a mere coincidence that their organization so completely conformed to the one whose pattern had been drawn by the Communists... They cannot deny the presence of well-known Communists in the ranks of the CIO Political Action Committee..."

Unions Listed.
The committee listed these CIO unions as ones in which "Communist leadership is strongly entrenched":—American Communications Association; International Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists, and Technicians; International Fur and Leather Workers Union; International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union; International Union of Fishermen and Allied Workers of America; International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers; International Woodworkers of America; Marine Cooks and Stewards Association of the Pacific Coast; National Maritime Union of America; State, County and Municipal Workers of America; Transport Workers Union of America; United Cannery, Agriculture, Packing and Allied Workers of America; United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America; United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers of America; United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America; United Office and Professional Workers of America; United Shoe Workers of America; United Stone and Allied Products Workers of America.

The Dies committee proposed a catechism "for the guidance of the American people in detecting Communist-front organizations." These questions would determine whether suspect organizations were guilty, said the committee:

1. Does the organization have Communist party members or those trusted by the Communist party, in its posts of real power—on its executive board, as secretary, organizer, educational director, editor, office staff?

2. Are meetings of the organization addressed by Communists or their trusted agents? Does its publication include articles by such persons?

3. Does the organization follow the Communist party line?

4. Does the organization co-operate with campaigns, activities, publications, of the Communist party or other front organizations?

5. Is the address of the organization in the same building with other front organizations or within co-operating vicinity?

6. Does the organization co-operate with Communist-controlled unions?

7. Does the organization's official publication reflect the line of the Communist party, publish articles by pro-Communists, advertise Communist activities, or those of other front organizations or of Communist vacation resorts?

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

99th Annual Statement to its Policyholders

The greatly intensified effort of the nation at war has been the dominant influence on the activities of the Company, its agents and employees, during the year 1943.

The Company itself has recognized its continued responsibility to support the Government in its war effort through the purchase of United States Government obligations. During the year the Company increased its holdings of these obligations by $341,000,000. At the end of the year the Company held over $1,608,000,000 of such securities, an amount equal to 48 per cent of the total assets of the Company. There is no safer investment than United States Government bonds. For the protection of its policyholders, therefore, as well as for the furtherance of the public interest, the Company has adhered to its wartime policy of investing its funds primarily in the obligations of the United States Government.

In view of the prevailing low rates of interest and in recognition of the long-range effect of low interest earnings, the Company has further increased the reserves held to secure the performance of its outstanding life insurance and annuity contracts.

The Company is convinced that its policy both as to investments and reserves is, in all the circumstances, prudent and proper so far as the protection of its policyholders is concerned. It is also clearly in the best interest of the nation still at war.

The Company declared for 1944 the same annual dividend scale as was applicable for 1943. Dividends payable in 1944 amount to $33,600,000.

Over 1700 of our employees and agents are now serving in the armed forces, and it is greatly to the credit of a much reduced staff that the detailed operations of the Company are being carried on with such a high standard of performance and service to the policyholders. At the same time the staff, both in the Home Office and in the Field, have made substantial contributions to the overall war effort by taking part to an increasing extent in volunteer war activities both through Company organizations and individually in their own communities.

Our agency organization, greatly reduced by war service, likewise deserves much credit for the encouraging growth during 1943 in the Company's volume of life insurance in force. Sales of new life insurance were $452,000,000, an increase of 12 per cent over the previous year. These sales are in excess of any year's business since 1937. Terminations because of lapse and surrender were the lowest in twenty-four years. At the close of the year total insurance in force was $7,340,000,000.

As of December 31, 1943, the real estate holdings of the Company, acquired under foreclosure, were valued at $38,250,000, which is but slightly over one per cent of the Company's total assets. The book value of foreclosed real estate sold during the year amounted to $22,900,000.

The mortality experience of the year was less favorable than the previous year but it did not differ greatly from 1940, despite the fact that in 1943 there were approximately $4,500,000 of war claims including deaths of men in service not caused by an act of war.

Although the life insurance business, by its very nature, is an important influence against inflation, nevertheless the Company has felt that, in these days of war employment and shortages of civilian goods, it should make every reasonable effort to play its part in the fight against an excessive rise in the cost of living. Accordingly, it has taken an active part in the cooperative advertising program undertaken by 116 life insurance companies to help prevent an uncontrolled rise in prices and the cost of living. Its purpose is to encourage people to do voluntarily those things which will divert spendable funds into war bonds, life insurance and savings rather than into unnecessary goods. The Company joined in this program believing that it was a timely contribution to the economic and social welfare of the country as a whole and that it would directly serve the best interests of its policyholders.

On April 12, 1944, the New York Life Insurance Company enters its 100th year in a strong position. The Company looks forward earnestly to the responsibilities and great opportunities which lie ahead.

A more complete report as of December 31, 1943, containing additional statistical and other information of interest about the Company, will be sent upon request. A list of bonds and preferred and guaranteed stocks owned by the Company is also available. These booklets may be obtained by writing to the New York Life Insurance Company, 51 Madison Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

COMMITTEE FOR $700,000 CUT IN SECURITY FUNDS

Reduction in Donnell's Requests Proposed After Group Hears Chairman Nardin.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 29.—Gov. Donnell's controversial bill requesting $3,460,000 in additional appropriations for the State Social Security Commission, which would be reduced by $700,000 if amendments recommended last night are adopted, will be called up in the House today for perfection.

The House Committee on Appropriations, reflecting opposition in the House to some of the allowances, proposed amendments which would cut the Governor's recommendation of an additional two million dollars of State and Federal funds for old-age pensions to $1,500,000, and would reject his recommendation of an added $200,000 of State funds for administrative costs.

The committee approved Donnell's recommendations for an additional $830,000 of state and federal funds for aid to dependent children, and an additional $400,000 of state funds for direct relief.

After the bill is perfected—the process of amending it—the measure will go on the House calendar for passage.

Funds voted by the legislative special session for social security will be in addition to $68,911,460 appropriated for that purpose for the 1943-44 biennial period by the 1943 Legislature.

Nardin Defends Administration. A three-hour committee hearing yesterday afternoon, which critics of the Social Security Commission had expected to bring out administrative faults, developed instead a stout defense of the administration and a plea for necessary additional funds by W. T. Nardin of St. Louis, commission chairman.

Increased pension grants, made necessary by advancing living costs, necessitated more funds for the rest of the year, Nardin said. He denied the pension roll was padded with ineligible persons. The pension roll, now totaling 104,467 persons, has been reduced by 7004 in the last 15 months. Monthly payments now average $21.56.

The commission is asking for more funds because it had miscalculated the requirements when the 1943 Legislature was in session. Nardin told the committee the estimated additional need was about $1,500,000—the amount the committee approved—but that two million should be provided to take care of possible additional requirements.

In response to questions, Nardin said the trend of social security requirements was for more funds as the program developed. Costs might be held down, he said, through enactment of a law giving the State a lien on any property of a pensioner, collectible after death, for the amount of pension payments.

Assails Relatives of Needy. He also suggested passage of an act making relatives of an indigent person responsible for his support. "You would be astonished at the number of children able to support their parents who put them out of their homes, in rented rooms, and then tell us we must give them pensions," Nardin said. "It is a shocking thing that children forget their obligations to their parents."

Unless additional funds for aid to dependent children were provided, Nardin said, payments would have to be suspended in October. In urging the additional $400,000 for relief, Nardin said: "Our relief grants are shockingly low." February payments to 15,061 persons on the relief roll averaged $11.07. "The commission feels that persons on relief have not been fairly treated in our appropriations," Nardin said. "This biennium they have been getting only about 80 per cent of their needs."

POLICE WATCHING HEADQUARTERS OF FORMER EGANITES

Siebel's Says Brazil Club
 Serves Only as Front
 —Four Held in Cronin Shooting Freed.

The mysterious Brazil Club, a second floor, walk-up establish- ment at 4016A Delmar boulevard, where four former Egan gangsters were arrested for questioning in the shooting of Timothy R. (Ted) Cronin, labor boss, was placed under a police watch today by Chief of Detectives Herman F. Siebel's.

Described by police as a "front" for the old Egan mobsters and a convenient meeting place for them and other "hot" characters, the club is believed to be backed by Stephen Ryan and David (Chippy) Robinson, two members of the old mob, who were in conference with Thomas Fagin and Louis Casper (Red) Smith when two detectives walked in the back door Monday afternoon. The front door was locked.

After almost 20 hours of question- ing by police, who said, "We might as well have been talking to dead men for all the answers we got," the men were released. Witnesses of the Cronin shooting March 2 and of the murders of Harley Grizzell and Norman Farr, East Side hoodlums, last December, could not identify any of them as participants.

Brothers Also Released.
 Leo Brothers, a former service car operator here and an organizer for Cronin in the AFL Service Car Drivers' Union, who served a sentence for the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingie, Chicago newspaper reporter, also was arrested for questioning in the same cases and later released.

James P. Walsh, owner of the Walsh Glass & Mirror Co., 2108 Olive street, and also owner of the building housing the club, declined to tell a Post-Dispatch reporter today the name of the person to whom he leases the club.

"We have kept the place under surveillance ever since it opened last October," Siebel's said, "but from now on it will be watched more closely, and every time Ryan, Smith, Fagin and Robinson are seen together they will be arrested. This is to prevent them from starting any new rackets."

Club Doors Always Locked.
 When they were arrested in the club, the Egan gangsters told detectives they were just sitting there waiting for customers. Everytime police have gone there, Siebel's said, they have found the doors locked.

Last Saturday night they also were locked at a few minutes before midnight when such establish- ments are usually going full swing. On opening night, one detective said, police were there, but no customers appeared.

 A dance hall license and a mer- chant's license have been issued to Oliver J. Borchering for the op- eration of the place, records showed. Borchering is a night- club entertainer, police said, and he uses the name of Jerry Sulli- van. His last known address was the New Plaza Hotel, 3301 Olive street. Hotel employees said no one was registered there by either of those names now.

JAPS GAIN IN INDIA DRIVE;
 LOSE 24 PLANES IN AIR FIGHT

NEW DELHI, March 29 (AP). — Allied fighter planes have smashed a big bomber thrust made in support of the Japanese inva- sion of India, downing 24 planes, but enemy ground forces are pressing hard northeast of Imphal and "our troops have taken up new positions," the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

The Japanese invasion column in the Ukhrul area 32 miles north- east of Imphal in India is main- taining pressure despite "heavy casualties in these attacks," the communique from Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said.

 Allied fighters including War- hawks and Mustangs fought a running battle, one of the greatest in this theater, over Northern Burma Monday with the escorted Japanese bombers, knocking down 11 bombers and 13 fighters and probably downing six others.
 The Japanese, apparently aiming at the Chabau and Ledo areas of Upper Assam, were forced to turn back without dropping their bombs.

U. S. PLAN FOR EISENHOWER TO DIRECT GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE OPPOSED BY ALLIES

Roosevelt Proposals Being Considered by British War Cabinet—Other Countries Disturbed, Have Been Promised Administration of Their Own Liberated Areas.

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK

The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Foreign Service. Copyright 1944. LONDON, March 29.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S draft of counterproposals for dealing with the administration of liberated areas in France is now being considered by the British War Cabinet. It threatens to be one of the most embarrassing issues raised between Britain and the United States since that of North African policy.

There is not the slightest doubt but that the British Government has made up its mind that the administration of liberated areas in France and the task of reforming the new French Government must be entrusted to the British committee and Gen. Charles de Gaulle. It was in this sense that the British forwarded the plan to Washington. President Roosevelt's counterproposal, received after many weeks of delay, would seem to leave the matter entirely up to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, as indicated in these columns on March 22. It is reported that Eisenhower protested against this.

Both Ambassador John G. Winant and Gen. Eisenhower are reported to have previously approved the British plan, which favored acceptance of the French committee at Algiers as the provisional administration of French liberated areas for a specified period.

Yesterday the London News Chronicle, commenting editorially on the reports of Eisenhower's protest, called it timely and reminded that a General's job is to command armies.

"Moreover, it is grossly unfair to France to suggest that our political relations with liberated France can be worked out hand-to-mouth by the Allies' commander in chief. They must be carefully thought out beforehand by the British and United States governments. Any attempt to bypass the (French National) Committee can only lay up unending trouble in the future," that newspaper said.

The News Chronicle attitude is a fair reflection of the thinking in informed quarters. It is a newspaper which up to this has always taken a somewhat violent anti-De Gaulle stand.

Other Allies Disturbed.

Today, the News Chronicle's diplomatic correspondent describes the dilemma which President Roosevelt's proposals have created for the British and the unfortunate reactions of other Allied governments. Other Allied governments are disturbed at the discrimination of the Americans against the French, inasmuch as it has been agreed that the Belgians, Dutch and Norwegians will be permitted to administer their own territories, asking for and receiving as much help as they require from the Allied "command" body, formerly the AMG.

The News Chronicle points out that the British must either risk alienating French good will, with all that implies for future Anglo-French relations, or offending President Roosevelt and creating friction between the United States and Britain. The correspondent concludes:

"The whole business is another unfortunate example of the apparent inability of the two governments to co-ordinate their foreign policies as successfully as they have their military strategy."

De Gaulle's Angry Reaction.
The London Daily Herald goes farther. Its editorial reminds that the French committee six months ago submitted proposals for the provisional administration of France to the British and United States.

Officer Dreams Up Pink Elephant For Morale, Ship's Crew Adopts It

By HAL O'FLAHERTY

The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Foreign Service. Copyright 1944.

AT SEA OFF BOUGAINVILLE, March 23 (Delayed).

HAVING landed Marines on the tiny island of Emirau, this task force is now courting back to Southern bases, virtually thumbing its nose at the Japanese who are holding out on Bougainville.

This landing ship is one of the happiest vessels on which I have ever embarked. From skipper down through enlisted personnel runs boundless pride in the ship's fighting qualities.

Executive officer Lt. W. F. Bentley, of Portland, Ore., has been through several Japanese aerial attacks in the South Pacific area and has survived a torpedo attack which sank the ship on which he was then serving. Some of the spirit de corps that so impresses the observer aboard this ship undoubtedly may be credited to Bentley's imagination.

It seems that after one bombing off the Solomons, Bentley discovered tension among the crew. Learning of this, he spoke in a tone loud enough to be heard by the whole crew, he began to address his friend "Pinky."

"There, there, Pinky old boy, it's all over," he crooned. Then, turning around, he explained to the surprised men, "See this nice pink elephant. He's not scared any more."

He got a laugh from everyone and nerves relaxed. "Pinky" became a sort of mascot. Wherever Bentley appeared men would greet him with, "Good morning, Mr.

COMMONS CHEERS AS EDEN DENIES U. S. 'DICTATES' TO BRITAIN ON FOREIGN POLICY

LONDON, March 29 (AP).

FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN denied in Commons today that Britain is being "dictated" to by the United States on foreign policy. The members cheered him.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell asked Eden to make clear "that so far as Europe is concerned we could not allow our foreign policy to be wholly dictated by the United States."

"There is absolutely no suggestion of that," Eden replied vigorously. "None at all, and I would not like any suggestion of that kind to go out from this house. We work in absolute co-operation together, neither one being subordinate to the other."

States governments. It had received no answer until last week when it learned from the press that the President empowered Gen. Eisenhower to appoint French civil authorities.

Commenting on the angry outburst of De Gaulle on Monday, when he told others to keep out of French affairs, the Herald writes: "Such a decision, announced in such a manner, might well have aroused a more equitable temper than that of Gen. De Gaulle."

The Herald calls the situation bewildering to plain citizens of the United Nations. The main man asks, says the paper:

"Cannot the President realize that it is not for him to decide from the White House how arrangements shall be made for the administration of freed France? Cannot Gen. De Gaulle realize that it is not purely a matter for the committee in Algiers? Why should French notes go unanswered for six months? The plain facts are that the machinery of political co-operation between the Allies is working badly."

So far as your correspondent has been able to ascertain, the French in London are the only Western European Allies who have not had any official contact with Eisenhower's headquarters staff, though all the requisite French liaison officers are here with plans on this point. Such contacts have been made with the Belgians, Dutch and Norwegians.

'Big 3' Must Assure Future Peace—Eden

Common Set of Principles Necessary to Co-operation, Secretary Says.

LONDON, March 29 (AP).

REAR BRITAIN, the United States and Russia—and possibly France—must share the responsibility for the preservation of the coming peace and must have the principal voice "in deciding any action taken in the general interest," says Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Every country will have an opportunity to be heard in international discussions, he told the Free Church Federal Council yesterday, but he asserted that the first problem "is to secure and maintain co-operation of the great powers," which "can only be done if we have some common purpose, some common set of principles."

Even after the principles have been agreed on, problems of their application will require "daily continuous consultation" among the big three, Eden said.

"Duties Must Vary."

"Every state must have the right to make its voice heard in discussions of means by which we are to arrive at our common ends," he said, adding:

"But let us admit that, although all states are equal in status, they are not equal in power and consequently their duties must vary. Responsibility for the preservation of peace must fall in the first instance on the powers which signed the Moscow declaration and I hope also on France, when, as we all trust, without long delay she resumes her place among the great powers."

"When it comes to deciding action, which only certain states by their military power are in a position to effectively take, we cannot simply count heads," he continued. "Great powers have, and must have, special responsibilities in the field of security. This does not mean there will be a dictatorship of the great powers; every free nation will have a responsibility for peace and its own contribution to it."

Three Purposes.

Eden warned that permanent peace entailed not only political and military security, but "economic and social well-being."

He said the Moscow and Tehran conferences accepted that the "world community" was composed of a number of independent states. We have to find a way by which all these separate units, each with its own history and aspirations, can work together for purposes so indispensable to them all.

"These purposes," he said, "may be described as peace, freedom and welfare."

He pleaded for patience and perseverance in the job of "healing the scars of the German occupation."

EISENHOWER VISITS AIR BASE, TALKS WITH COL. HOWARD

LONDON, March 29 (AP)—Gen.

Russian Action on Badoglio Shows Lack of Political Unity, Says Welles

He Declares 4-Power Treaty Should Have Set Up United Nations Executive Council—'Soviet Acted Wholly on Own.'

By SUMNER WELLES

Former Under Secretary of State.

(Copyright, 1944.)

THE announcement of the decision of the Soviet Union to establish diplomatic relations with the Badoglio government in Italy has created universal speculation. It has aroused uneasiness in this country.

There have been innumerable interpretations. They have ranged from the point of view expressed by some that the step taken had no special significance—as if political moves made by Stalin at this time could ever be without significance—to the opinion that the Soviet Government has now shown its intention of dominating Europe.

The fact that this decision of the Soviet Government should have been taken at all seems to me to demand far more serious heart-searchings on our part than the precise reasons which may have lain behind it. For it is unmistakable proof, if additional proof were needed, that the major members of the United Nations have not yet achieved unity on the political front. It is now officially admitted by this Government that the Soviet Government neither consulted it nor informed the Mediterranean Advisory Commission before taking this action.

A Serious Situation.
The seriousness of such a state of affairs at this late moment—a moment which, we all hope, marks our rapid progress toward final victory in Europe—cannot be exaggerated.

From the day this country entered the war we knew that the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States would have differing views as to political and territorial questions.

The wisest course that the three governments could have followed under these conditions would have been to create some continuing council of high policy-making officials, through which they could have kept in the closest contact at all times. It was equally important for them to try to reach agreements covering the more serious problems as rapidly as possible and not to postpone such an attempt until after the common victory.

The chances for coming to such understandings were greater in the earlier stages of the war. The stupendous successes of the Soviet armies in Eastern Europe and the constantly increasing resentment aroused in Russia by the delay in the creation of the Second Front, however fully that delay is justified by reason of our own military preparations, have increased the conviction of the Soviet Union that its political and territorial aspirations are wholly justified.

Every month that has passed has crystallized more firmly the views of each of the three major powers concerning issues on which they disagree.

Anzio-Nettuno's Swanky Villas, Shops Deserted

Nazi Shells Chewing at Buildings—Holes in Streets, Statues Broken.

By ERNIE PYLE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH THE ALLIED BEACH-HEAD FORCES IN ITALY, March 29 (By Wireless).

ANZIO AND NETTUNO run together along the coast of our beachhead, forming practically one city. There is really only one main street, which runs along the low blocks just back of the first row of waterfront buildings.

The two cities stretch for about three miles, but extend only a few blocks back from the waterfront. A low hill covered thick with tall cedar trees rises just back of them, and along some of the streets there are palm trees.

I had supposed these two places were just ancient little fishing villages. Well, they are old, but not in their present form.

Anzio is where Nero is supposed to have fiddled while Rome burned, but in more recent years he would doubtless have been sprawling in a deck chair in the patio of his seaside villa, drinking cognac.

For these two towns are now (or rather, were until recently), high-class seaside resorts. They've been built up in the modern manner within the last 20 years. They are much bigger and much more modern than I had supposed.

When you look at them from a certain place, they extend 200 yards from the water's edge, forming a solid flank of fine stone buildings four and five stories high. Most of these are apartment houses, business buildings and rich people's villas.

Today there is no civilian life in Anzio-Nettuno. The Germans had evacuated everybody before we came, and we found the place deserted. A few Italians have straggled back in, but they are few indeed.

No Business There.
In the path of warfare over here, "business as usual" seems to have been the motto of the natives. Adult civilians have stayed in some places despite the fall of heaven and earth upon them.

BITTER ATTACK ON U. S. ENVOY BY ARGENTINE MINISTER

Gen. Perlinger Said to Have Virtually Invited Armour to Leave Country—Also Assailed Allied War Aims.

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP).

DISPATCHES to the New York Times and the Herald Tribune from Montevideo said today that Gen. Luis C. Perlinger, Argentine Minister of the Interior, had violently attacked United States Ambassador Norman Armour in an off-the-record discussion of the international situation with a group of Argentine newspaper men.

The dispatches to both newspapers said Perlinger did not mention Armour by name, but that he made it obvious to whom he referred.

The Interior Minister also was said to have assailed the war aims of the United States and Great Britain and to have predicted that all of the present belligerents would soon unite to fight Russia.

The New York Times said Argentine newspapermen who heard Perlinger described the interview this way:

"Perlinger, who spoke with energy and severity, referred to the Argentine international situation. He affirmed that he was neither a Nazi nor a Fascist but an Argentinean, and said he was 'against all those foreigners who had the presumption to say that Argentina did not know where she was going.'"

"We do know," he said. "We know that this war is not being fought for liberty but for other things which we must later be prepared to accept. It is not possible, therefore, that we should continue smiling at the Ambassador of a certain country that refuses to maintain relations with us who are masters of our house. That is not possible, and I myself am the first to look with an angry face at that gentleman; and all Argentineans should do the same thing."

The Times said Perlinger was believed to be a typical Argentine personal rival of War Minister Col. Juan Peron, and observers predict that a showdown between them cannot long be deferred.

The Herald Tribune's dispatch said Perlinger's remarks were "considered an invitation to Armour to leave the country. They follow the line laid down by Argentina's nationalist and pro-Nazi press, which suggested recently that Perlinger need not remain any longer if the United States did not desire to continue diplomatic relations with Argentina."

Washington recently instructed Armour to refrain from diplomatic activity with the present Argentine Government pending further study of conditions under which Gen. Pedro Ramirez turned over the presidency to Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

Both dispatches quoted Perlinger as saying American and British middle classes were more in sympathy with Nazi Germany than with Soviet Russia, and that nations now at war will soon unify themselves in a war against Russia. The Tribune termed this "Adolf Hitler's old red herring."

Since Perlinger became Minister of the Interior, stringent measures against United States concerns have been taken by departments coming under his control.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Greeks Fight for Freedom

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

July 4, 1776, brings back to us memories of the terrible struggle of those brave young colonists who banded together to declare to the whole world that they stood for and were resolved to have their God-given rights to Liberty, Equality and Freedom. The American Revolution stands without parallel, for this little band of men electrified the whole world by arraying themselves against all who would keep them in bondage.

A second date, March 25, 1821, was the inspiration of Greece, which sought to emulate the example set by America. With a handful of men, with high resolve to throw off the crushing yoke which had held their beloved country enslaved, Greeks began a relentless war, enduring such hardships as few nations had ever been called upon to bear, and against a horde of barbarians knowing no mercy. Before victory was achieved, however, millions of Turks swarmed over Greece, determined to annihilate this peace-loving people. The Greeks struck back at the Turkish Empire, frantically struck with such mighty blows as to stagger their opponents. Their motto, borrowed from America, was "Give Us Liberty or Death!"

Under the gallant leadership of Ypsilanti, Adjutant-General on the staff of Czar Alexander I, who had accepted the invitation to command the Revolutionists, these men went on to victory, but their great commander died for the cause he had so loyally espoused.

After many years of unceasing struggle, there emerged from the dreadful carnage a beautiful little nation whose classic ancestors had been great heroes and warriors of Marathon, Plataea and Salamis. Greeks scattered all over the world have many friends who rejoiced with them in their glorious victory, and the memory of those men who died for the cause shall ever live. Some day, in the not distant future, we feel that Greece will again proudly stand before the bar of humanity, mourning the death of her latest heroes—men, women and even little children who fought so gloriously, only to be beaten down by the furious, crushing hordes of Hitler.

The resolution to free its people to live in peace with all its neighbors, as Americans have done for so many years, gives impetus and strength to these courageous people. No longer do the Greeks need poets to sing of their courage, nor to admonish them to remain loyal. The love of their people will ever give them the strength until they have finally earned their place and attained what we Americans have and shall continue to keep—Freedom, Liberty and Democracy. Either they will continue resisting, or die.

Wants Postwar Planning

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I agree with Prof. Clair Wilcox's article on free enterprise, in Sunday's Mirror of Public Opinion. I don't agree, however, with the reduction in tariff to allow foreign goods to enter the market here to compete with goods produced by American labor.

The country will prosper far more by having a large volume of sales, at a small margin of profit to the business men, rather than a large profit and a small volume of sales.

We should start now, before the war is over, to consider business problems and not wait until the war is over to wish that we had done something about them at that time.

The Gerald Smith Fizzle

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The enigma, Gerald L. K., was almost made into a martyr before and during his short visit in St. Louis. It was probably part of his strategy to arouse attention by stirring up public indignation. It is unfortunate that so many citizens and public-spirited groups swallowed the bait so completely.

Whether or not we agree with Smith's remarks, we should remember that great philosopher said: "I will defend his right to say it."

The fact that Smith had to encourage applause from his selected audience is evidence of his general strategy in getting attention from the public.

Vacant Lots for Victory Gardens

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It will soon be time to plant Victory gardens. This year there should be more gardens than ever before. Everyone should be thinking and preparing for his garden now.

I think that many empty lots could be used for community gardening. Some of these lots were used last year, but many more could be used by people without adequate space in their yards.

Russia and Ourselves

We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit, and in purpose.

Those are the closing sentences of the Teheran Declaration signed: "Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill." It was this declaration which said also: "We express our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that will follow."

Just exactly what happened at Teheran the public does not know; it was willing, yes, eager to accept the Teheran Declaration as meaning what it said, as meaning that the United States, Britain and Russia had threshed out common problems and had come to an amicable agreement.

Yet since Teheran various disturbing actions have been taken by Soviet Russia that hardly seem in keeping with a friendship in fact, in spirit, and in purpose.

No doubt the United States and Britain, too, have annoyed and disappointed Soviet Russia. It is clear, for example, that Russia has long regarded with impatience the delay in opening the second front. There seems to have been a misunderstanding about the division of the Italian fleet. Russia is known to be sensitive to criticism over her claims on the Baltic states and Eastern Poland. We think those claims are strong ones.

In any case, whatever deplorable differences may exist among the three great Allies, whose unity is vital for the making of war and the making of peace, it is time to consider them openly and candidly.

We think it is a service to the cause of unity to tell the Russian people and the Russian Government that some recent occurrences have been disturbing to the American people.

Last January, Pravda published in its rumor column a report from its Cairo correspondent to the effect that two British personalities had discussed a separate peace with German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop somewhere on the Iberian peninsula. The report ended with the following insinuating statement:

The meeting had the aim of finding out the conditions of a separate peace with the Germans. It is understood the meeting did not remain without results.

The questionable source of this dispatch (rumors of all kinds are rife in Cairo) added to the wonderment that it should be published in the official Communist party newspaper.

If the Soviet Government actually felt it could not trust its Western allies, would it have proceeded in this strange fashion to express distrust? The publication caused consternation among the people of Russia, and indignation in the United States and Britain.

Why and for what purpose was the good faith and determination of Britain so questioned?

In February came the attack upon the Vatican in the official Soviet Government newspaper, Izvestia, which asserted that the Vatican foreign policy has disillusioned Catholics and has "earned the hatred and contempt of the Italian masses for supporting Fascism."

Then, in March, came the announcement that Stalin had recognized the discredited government of Victor Emmanuel and Badoglio. It is hard to reconcile this action, which came without consulting the British and American governments, with the attack on the Vatican.

If the Vatican attack was made in the supposed interest of the Italian people, the Badoglio recognition was a bitter blow to liberty-loving Italians, who despise the Duke of Addis Ababa and the little King.

We repeat that such occurrences as these disturb Americans. They tend to impair the unity which is so desperately needed to win the war and to fashion the peace. They tend to cause Americans to regard Russia with suspicion and, in turn, to interpret her attitude as one of suspicion toward Britain and the United States.

Under the circumstances, we think it is good for Americans to tell Russians exactly how we feel and to encourage equal candor on the Russians' part. The nettle should be grasped firmly. By admitting differences—and differences are bound to exist among allies engaged in a war of world-wide scope—we can best resolve them.

Recognition for St. Louis U.

St. Louis University receives a signal distinction and a great opportunity for service in being chosen to receive the $36,000 annual income from the $1,250,000 trust fund left by Henry E. Sever, textbook publisher, for establishing the Sever Institute of Geophysical Technology. The university was chosen after careful scrutiny from among 11 Missouri institutions that applied for the endowment, and the program for launching the new school is well under way.

The university's leadership in this important field of science was recognized in making the award, and so were the special qualifications of its specialist in the physics of the earth, the Rev. James B. Macelwane, identified by the Chicago Judge who approved the fund committee's choice as "one of the most outstanding, if not the most outstanding geophysicist in the United States." The city's status as an educational center is enhanced by St. Louis University's designation, on grounds of merit, to launch this undertaking.

Some Basic Objections

The possibilities in a conversation between a person who speaks Basic English but not English, and a person who speaks English but not Basic English, hadn't seemed obvious and delightful until the governments-in-exile rejected Basic yesterday.

Basic wouldn't, they said, mean a thing to them unless it were used as much as English in the British Empire and the United States. The criticism is pertinent. Cogent is the word for it, a non-Basic word, a word of strictly Superstructure English. How near the speaker of Basic and the speaker of English might come to understanding one another—and yet how far!

A word such as "schism," "vulpine" or "eleemosynary," dropped into a conversation between two persons who believe themselves to be speaking English, will often produce consternation. What would it not produce in the breast of the speaker of Basic, one who knew no other English words?

There could only ensue a spirited struggle to locate a word known to both. What broad avenues of error would not be opened up! What vistas of perplexity! What crossings of questions and crookings of answers! What—in fact—Basic misunderstandings!

The English and the Americans have been sympathetically described as two peoples separated by a common language. We have now in Basic an opportunity to be separated by an uncommon one as well.

The Brakes Must Stay On

OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, and now Secretary Stimson, have stated the price-control case before the Senate Banking Committee. Their plea is for a year's extension of the inflation brakes beyond June 30, but each makes a point of reminding Congress that the brakes must not go off immediately the war is over.

The whole stabilization front, a three-pronged offensive, has been under fire these first few months of our third year of war. Passage of a most inadequate tax bill broke down one offensive against inflation. The wage line held by the Little Steel formula is under fire now, and CIO has already presented a strong case before the War Labor Board. The third—prices—can be disastrously weakened, as it was last year, by a barrage of amendments and reservations. The same group of "beneficial inflation" Republicans and farm bloc partisans managed to reduce OPA enforcement funds and later tried to throw out the whole subsidies program.

Secretary Stimson pointed out the saving in citizens' dollars made possible by price control, which spread farther than was expected the expenditures by procurement agencies for war needs. He has also pointed out the folly of continuing stabilization only to the point of armistice. This would confront returning soldiers with two strikes against them, so far as economic readjustment is concerned.

Those on the home front have a triple duty to urge continued controls on their representatives in Congress. One is to themselves and their families. A second is to their neighbors. A third is to their sons and brothers and husbands in the armed forces, who must find stability and security when they come back home.

A Trend Is Snapped

If the Republican candidate in Oklahoma's Second Congressional District had won yesterday, instead of being decisively defeated, the victory would have been construed as a spectacular continuation of the G. O. P. trend since 1942.

Beginning in November, 1942, when the Republicans won 47 House seats and many governorships, there has been a steady succession of G. O. P. advances. Until yesterday, of 10 special congressional elections since 1942, the Democrats had won only two, one of them by a very narrow margin in what hitherto had been a heavily Democratic New York district. Twenty-six Republican Governors now hold office.

So it was with confidence that the G. O. P., under the leadership of Senator Moore, entered the Second Congressional District to conduct a powerful campaign for E. O. Clark. On their part, the Democrats sent an ace trouble-shooter in the person of Senator Barkley. When the shooting was over and the smoke had cleared, a dead elephant lay on the field. Mr. Stigler's election may convince the Republicans that they cannot "win with anybody" in November, that "trends" have a way of snapping at odd moments, that, if Mr. Roosevelt runs for a fourth term, the campaign will be a horse race.

Honors for Home-Front Soldiers

Not all the decorations for wartime service to the nation are won or awarded on the field of battle. Our Government also recognizes the achievements on the home front that are contributing to the victories on the war front, and it has just conferred the Medal of Merit on two distinguished civilian soldiers: John C. Garand, inventor of the rifle that bears his name, and Dr. Albert Hoyt Taylor, who discovered and developed radar.

A heavy toll of the enemy has been taken and the lives of many American soldiers have been saved by the superior functioning of the Garand semi-automatic rifle, which fires eight shots with high accuracy as fast as the trigger can be pulled. This powerful weapon, operated by the explosive power of the gases released by each shot, has been severely tested in the war, and has won praise from commanders and doughboys alike ever since Bataan.

Radar, acclaimed as the war's most revolutionary weapon, provides far-sighted mechanical eyes for our armed forces! It enables flyers, seamen, artillerymen and anti-aircraft crews to overcome fog or darkness or distance with equal ease. It came into being when Dr. Taylor and his associates, experimenting with radio 22 years ago, found that the waves were deflected by distant objects. They overcame the apathy and inertia of their superiors, and applied their discovery to perfect the modern radio detection device that has proved of such tremendous value.

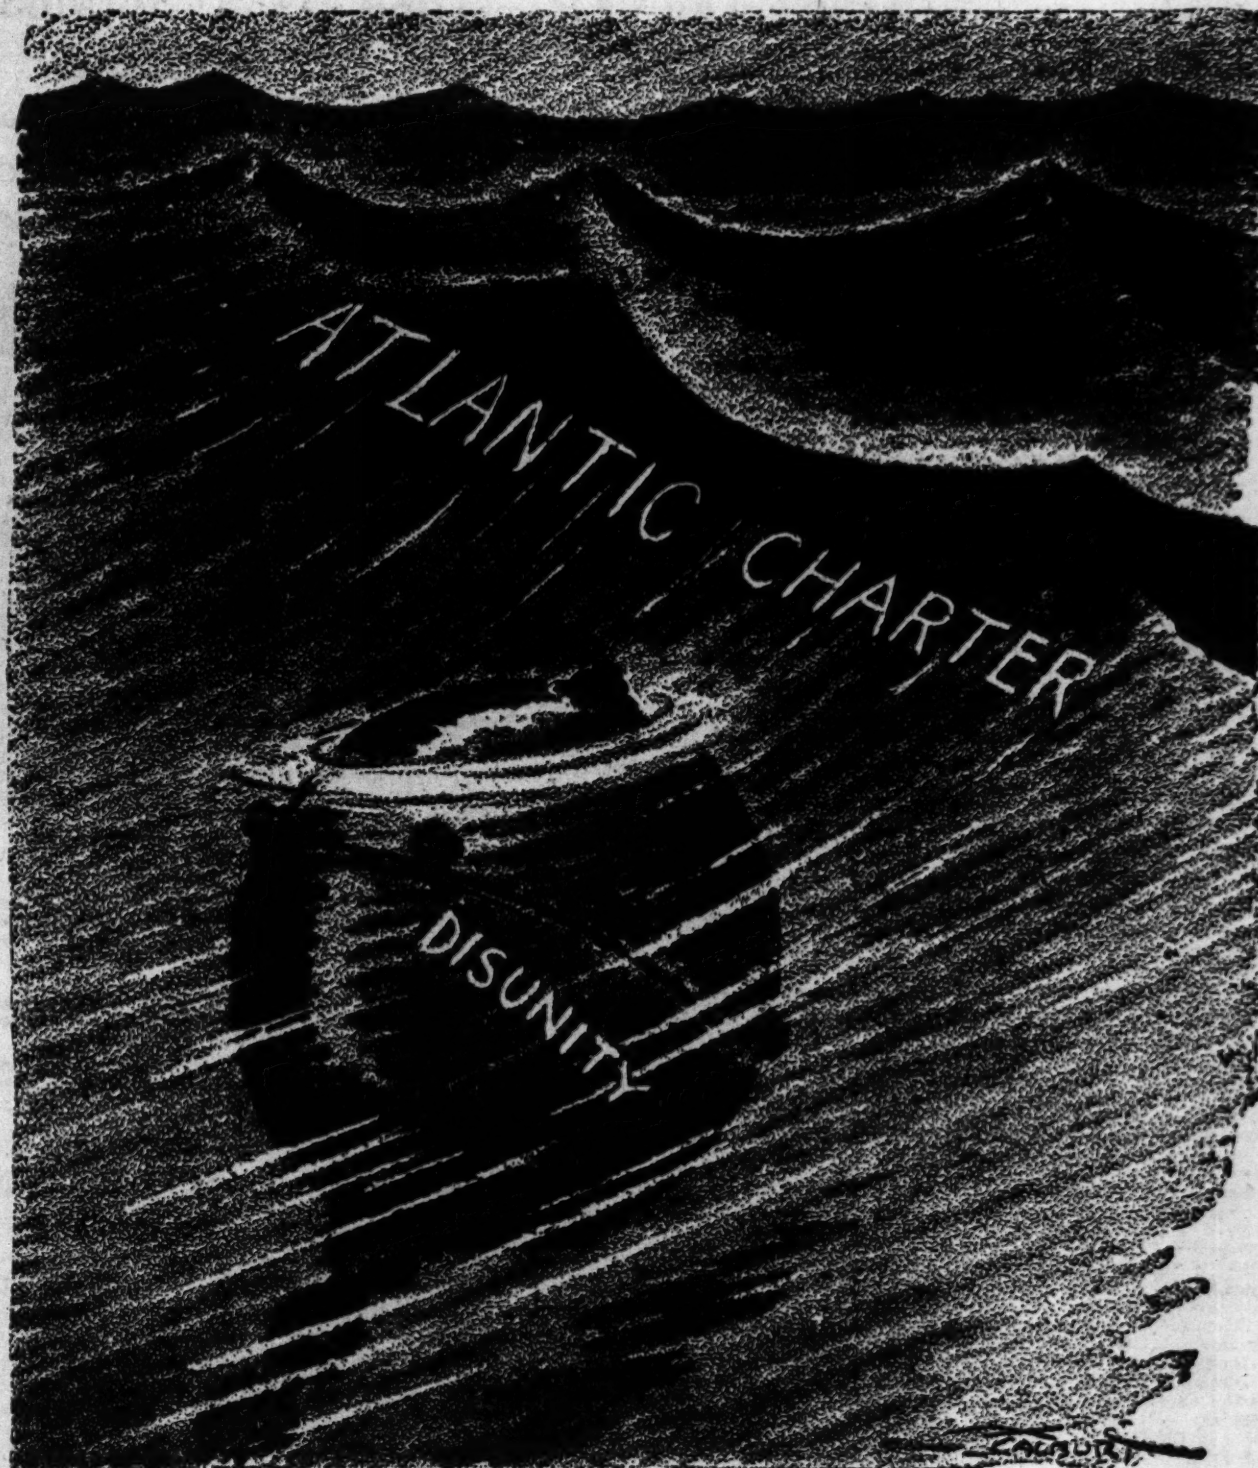

These two men deserve the honors of their country for serving it with high distinction. There are others, too, working in secluded laboratories today, whose achievements will be recognized when all the scientific secrets of this war can be told.

New Drive for Press Subsidy

The drive for a press subsidy is on again, now that the House Ways and Means Committee has had a change of heart, after pigeonholing the Bankhead bill, and has reported out a revised version. This orders the Treasury to spend from $12,500,000 to $15,000,000 a year to advertise war bonds in newspapers published in cities with a population of 25,000 or less.

Opposition to the new move to revive the measure may be expected from those who have previously opposed the plan—Secretary Morgenthau, Elmer Davis, advertising men and metropolitan newspapers. Senator Truman of Missouri has already come out against it, with the statement that freedom of the press would be endangered "if Government bureaucrats were suddenly entrusted with huge sums to be spent for this purpose."

Freedom of the press and the confidence of readers are the most cherished possessions of American newspapers, large and small. Both would be jeopardized by this subsidy proposal.

The Fight Against Juvenile Crime

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Challenge of delinquency among youth must be met by adult America, writes head of FBI; old causes have been accelerated by dislocations of wartime; parents must be assisted by co-ordination of all community facilities to give young people needed leadership.

J. Edgar Hoover in the New York Times Magazine

Desperately in need of help, a Midwest mother recently appealed to me. She wrote in part: "My 16-year-old son, one of millions of restless youth, has become defiant, disobedient, disrespectful and generally disregards advice and authority from parents and teachers."

In the last few months, I have read hundreds of similar appeals, but this one seemed to epitomize all that has been said and written concerning the wartime problems of young people. This mother's words were almost pathetic—harbingers of trying days to come unless we take measures now to help our boys and girls through this critical time.

The seriousness of wartime crime among young people can be seen in each day's newspaper stories of youthful misadventures, running the gamut from lurid sex crimes to vicious acts of vandalism amounting to actual sabotage.

Admittedly, the causes of this situation are not new, but they have been accentuated many times over by the changed conditions brought on by the war. Juvenile crime flourishes where the home ties have been weakened by divorce, separation, the desertion of a parent or the ignorance, carelessness or indifference of fathers and mothers. Our homes are not the sanctuaries of family life they once were.

Youth's Craving for Action

The real trouble today comes in those instances where youngsters are not content with merely "playing" soldier or war and turn to more dangerous pursuits.

That craving for action and assumed fearlessness is one reason why "muggings" have become prevalent, where an assailant alights behind a victim, throws a stout cord around his neck and chokes him; it has a great deal to do with the motivation in those cases where mere children have boldly robbed adults.

Recently I received an anonymous letter from a number of youngsters which undoubtedly represents the feelings of many of our girls today. They wrote, "We are a group of girls who are 13½ and 14 years old. . . . You have written about service men picking girls up at night and we feel that the reason for this is that these girls, like ourselves, are very bored because they have no chance to meet boys and have fun." The letter goes on to suggest that a "date bureau," supervised by adults, be established for boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 18 to provide relaxation and stop girls from roaming the streets.

Adult Attention Is Needed

Whether or not we agree with the solution these girls suggest, certainly it hurls a challenge to adult America to cast aside its apathetic attitude and give youth a helping hand. Our wandering girls, boy saboteurs and thrill seekers are all children of the war, crying for adult attention.

What can be done? The answer is neither mysterious nor difficult. Juvenile delinquency must be met in the home and in the community. All persons who bear the blessed title of "parent" have the personal responsibility to see that their children are growing up fully appreciative of the rights of God and their fellow-men.

This does not mean merely a sharp reprimand now and then. It means that fathers mand now and then. It means that fathers and mothers on an hour-to-hour basis must be constantly alert to their children's activities.

Parents, however, cannot do the whole job. They must be backed up by effective community co-operation. This has been recognized by many, and in recent months more and more cities and towns have put into effect programs to help children, and parents as well. This movement must be continued.

Problem of Workers' Children

With parents carrying added war burdens, there is a greater need today than ever before for such worthwhile projects as day centers for the children of working mothers, health clinics and, perhaps most important of all, educational courses for adults in home-making and child welfare.

Greater emphasis must be placed also on vocational and recreational programs run for youth and by youth. Many cities have claimed great success with "youth centers" and "teen towns." Others, however, have been slow in getting such helpful activities started.

How a particular community should go about getting an effective, co-operative program under way will depend, of course, on the actual conditions with which it must cope. Certainly the various social agencies in the average community are already working along the right lines. What is needed now more than anything else is leadership to co-ordinate the efforts of our schools, churches, child bureaus, civic groups and youth organizations so as to avoid duplication of work and achieve maximum effectiveness.

An Opportunity for Service

It is undoubtedly true that many of our former youth leaders are away from home serving in the war effort, but this is no justification for shelving youth programs for the duration. There are innumerable men and women, such as ex-service men and war workers, who are anxious to help out in their spare time. The war has taught us how to make the best of what we have on hand in many ways. Let us in this same spirit organize our available community facilities to give our youngsters the chance they deserve.

Finally, don't count out law enforcement. Local police departments are closer to crime conditions in the various communities than other social agencies. Any successful crime prevention program must provide for the effective co-operation of the police.

From coast to coast youth is having its fling. As the good mother who wrote to me stated, youth is "restless"—caught in the surging tides of war. Just as we are steadily winning the fight on other fronts, so also can a determined America take care of its "war children," and insure a strong citizenry for tomorrow. We must not fall in this task.

AN ANCIENT MEMORY.

H. V. Wade in the Detroit News.

Who now remembers when you had to holler all over a large Texas farm to find the Vice-President of the United States?

Four Volumes on Country Life
For Either Dreamers or Doers

"The Country Craft Book," by Randolph Wardell Johnston.

"The Country Rod & Gun Book," by Arthur Wallace French.

"The Country Cook Book," by Corn, Rose and Bob Brown.

"The Country Dance Book," by Beth Tolman and Ralph Page. (A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.)

Come dream of the days when an A card shall be merely a piece of paper and life in the country may be had for the driving—or the hedge-hopping. There's more life for the living of it in the country than most city cliff-dwellers ever contemplate.

These four little volumes are a blueprint for taking life in the country and making the most of it. They can be recommended to dreamers and to doers.

Mr. Johnston writes of the fun of working with wood, clay, metals, stone and color and offers "recipes & secrets of the crafts now first published." He explains in a preface, with the solemnity of a David Grayson, why this manuscript should be.

He is a doer, an artist and a dreamer. He sets about rebuilding old houses and quarreling with those who patch such places with modern mill-sawn lumber instead of restoring the artistry of original craftsmanship. For anyone who likes to work with his hands, this is a volume of accurate detail.

A veteran of fields and streams such as Arthur Wallace French disdains so commonplace a thing as a preface and gives his reader "The Password" into a "friendly guide and instructive compendium of successful methods of taking fish and game in rural regions, with some comments on fishing and hunting as a way to wisdom, and now and then a tall tale." By the way . . . ever catch a hoopajob or an ouaniche? One of them is a fish.

"The Country Cook Book," perhaps the only humorous book of recipes on record, tells what to do with a hoopsjob or an ouaniche, should the squire bring one home. But don't get the wrong idea. The book, never prosaic, is entirely practical.

Parsley, say the authors, is good but tiresome. They then lead on into the mysteries of pickling radish seed pods, making Rosemary soup (Rosemary, that's for remembrance), roasting porcupines (what a boon to ration-harassed housewives), and flavoring jelly with geraniums. As for French thistles, there's a recipe for them, too, though the farmer would much rather know what to do with Canadian thistles.

When day is done, nothing quite so completely tops the luscious country routine as a romp on the dance floor. The chant of the barn-dance caller, like that of the tobacco auctioneer, makes sense when reduced to slow motion. Cold type in a book does that to it.

The authors hail the country dance as the essence of the Four Freedoms at work and nominate it as "the first crisis in the recovery of civilization from its self-poisoning." So, every other couple dance the outside and back. Swing your partner. Alemande left and promenade.

Timely Words of Lincoln

"Abraham Lincoln: Selections From His Writings," Edited by Philip S. Foner. (International Publishers, New York.)

On the thesis that many of Lincoln's utterances are as valid today as when he made them, Philip S. Foner, of the Jefferson School of Social Science, has compiled this book of selected quotations. Founded as they are on the Declaration of Independence and on broad humanitarian principles, the Civil War President's words on democracy, slavery, civil rights and labor are indeed timeless in their application.

WALTER LIPPMANN

The Atlantic Charter

It is indeed most necessary, as Mr. Churchill has just told the House of Commons, that the Atlantic Charter should be clarified. Many questions have arisen under it which weigh heavily on the consciences of honest men. Because there has been no way of obtaining an authoritative interpretation in concrete cases, the charter is tending to become an instrument of disunion and of demoralization.

Yet it was intended to be the charter of good and lasting peace. It can still be that, but only if the nations which signed it have the candor and the moral resolution to clarify it.

The Atlantic Charter is a declaration of eight principles made by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on Aug. 14, 1941. Four and a half months later, on Jan. 1, 1942, it was embodied in what is known as the joint declaration by the "United Nations" and is an organic part of the grand alliance for the conduct of the war and for the making of peace. There is no doubt that the Atlantic Charter is a solemn agreement duly signed and sealed.

A Matter of Interpretation.

The eight general principles are not, however, always self-evident, and men, even the men who wrote them, may and do differ as to how to interpret them. This is no cause for dismay or embarrassment. Any code of conduct, the Ten Commandments, the Bill of Rights, Wilson's Fourteen Points, has to be interpreted continually if it is to be applied to all concrete cases as they arise.

There are already a fair number of such concrete cases where an interpretation of the Atlantic Charter is needed but none is to be had. Some of these cases have been posed by governments, others by responsible private citizens in the course of the discussion of the settlement of the war.

Here are a few cases which call for an interpretation of the charter. Many more will arise as we come nearer to the actual settlement of the war.

Problem of Pacific Islands.

1. Though the United States has as yet made no formal claim, there will be every disposition to claim the annexation of the Pacific Islands obtained by Japan under a mandate from the League of Nations. If we ask for these islands, are we violating the first principle of the charter, which says that we "seek" no aggrandizement, territorial or otherwise?

If we obtain title to these islands, shall we have violated also the second principle of the charter, which says that we "desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned?" Who are the people concerned? Are they the natives on the islands and how do they freely express their wishes?

2. It has frequently been said, and the Chinese generally believe, that in accord with the charter it is the obligation of Great Britain to surrender Hongkong. What principle of the charter can be invoked to alter a title valid long before the charter was adopted? Can the inhabitants of Hongkong be transferred from British to Chinese sovereignty without first ascertaining their "freely expressed wishes"?

3. Do the principles of the charter

RED CROSS $447,487 SHORT OF FUND QUOTA

Added Gifts Being Sought With Drive Scheduled to End Friday.

The Red Cross War Fund must raise $447,487 by Friday to fulfill its quota of $2,800,000 in the month-long drive. Campaign Chairman J. Russell Coulter said today, in announcing that $2,352,513, approximately 84 per cent of the goal, already had been subscribed.

This amount includes the reports of three divisions—St. Louis County, South St. Louis and West End—which have exceeded their quotas. It represents, however, an increase of only 3 per cent since the last reported totals announced on Monday. The average increase over each two-day period had been 10 per cent previously.

"Our drive will succeed only if every person gives all he can now," Coulter said. "For means for some persons an increase of previous donation. Some, realizing the need, already have made additional gifts."

Special gifts division chairman Charles Belknap reported today that the Western Union Telegraph Co. has contributed $10,000 to the fund here.

Employees of Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. have contributed $24,244, an increase of almost $9,000 over their gift for 1943. Solicitations were conducted by the labor-management morale committee at the plant, said Adrian W. Frazer, chairman of the commerce and industry division.

In a letter to his father, John Nicoletti, 6929 Southwest avenue, St. Nicholas Joseph Nicoletti, a prisoner of the Germans, wrote: "I have plenty of food, clothing and a warm place to sleep. Thanks to the Red Cross, we are quite comfortable."

MERIT AWARDS FOR COUNTY PRICE, RATIONING WORKERS

More than 200 board members and volunteer workers of the St. Louis County War Price and Rationing Board who have served 100 or more hours will receive certificates for meritorious service tonight at Clayton High School, celebrating the board's third year of existence. A group of 25 volunteers whose total contribution is more than 1000 hours of service will receive distinguished service medals.

The awards will be made to board members by William H. Bryan, district director of the St. Louis Office of Price Administration, and to volunteers by Vance I. Shield, general chairman of the St. Louis County War Price and Rationing Board.

John A. Hart Dies in Florida. John Armstrong Hart, former St. Louis capitalist, died yesterday at his home at St. Augustine, Fla., where he had lived for 15 years.

Mr. Hart, who was about 55 years old, was the son of the late Augustus B. Hart and lived for many years in the family home at 19 Portland place. Besides his wife, Mrs. Mary Lucas Hart, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary Hart; a son, John A. Hart Jr. of the Coast Guard; a sister, Mrs. Arthur B. Barrett, and a brother, Oliver B. Hart, all of St. Augustine.

Personally, the Colonel has a grave courtesy. His walnut-paneled office is more like a gentleman's study than a business office. His smile is shy, almost impish.

He shows no signs of being an ogre. It is silly to build him into a super-Fuhrer. To find security, he is marching backward into the past.

COURT HEARING URGED ON LEE SCHOOL REPORT

Public Education Ass'n Says Charges Reflect on the Board.

A Circuit Court hearing of charges made by James J. Lee, former Comptroller of the Board of Education, that the board's antipatronage rule has been violated and that there has been mismanagement in two departments of the school system, was recommended last night by the Public Education Association.

In a formal statement the association, made up of representatives of organizations interested in school affairs, said that "these charges seriously reflect on the integrity of the Board of Education as a whole and weaken the faith and confidence of the citizenry in the administration of our system of public education."

"In fairness to the general public," the statement continued, "and to the school children and members of the board, these charges should be fully investigated and passed upon by the Circuit Court of St. Louis, which, by law, is given exclusive jurisdiction over the board."

The matter can be taken to Circuit Court, the statement said, at the instance of any member or officer of the Board of Education or of any 10 citizens, and "in order that the charges be proven or found false it appears to be the duty of either one of the individuals or a group of 10 citizens to make such possible."

The association stated it was not instituting a suit as an association or attempting to pass on the truth or falsity of Lee's charges. W. Stanley Stuart, president of the association, said however that further consideration would be given to a possible suit and to Lee's request at a meeting of the association's board of directors to be called next week.

The directors also will consider, following a motion made last night, the widely discussed plan for reforming the administration of the school system.

In his last monthly report, issued a few days before he entered the Navy, Lee cited specific instances in which he said members of the school board caused appointments of school employees to be made. The report was received without comment by the board, and Stuart said last night he understood the members intended to do nothing about it.

In a subsequent letter of resignation Lee said he understood there had been loose management of one phase of the war workers training program and that insurance contracts had been distributed on the basis of friendship.

U. S. FLYER THINKS PEAK IN CHINA MAY TOP MOUNT EVEREST

Reported to Be in Sinkiang Province—Pilot Plans More Accurate Check.

NEW YORK, March 29.—In a special radio broadcast from a United States air base in China, Brooks Atkinson, a correspondent of the New York Times, reports a mountain that may be higher than Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, 29,000 feet, which long has been officially accounted the top of the world.

Atkinson says an American flyer, off his course somewhere north of Tientsin, in Sinkiang province of Western China, found himself paralleling the side of a mountain, the crest of which was 2000 or 3000 feet above him. His altimeter showed 31,000 feet, but the pilot estimates his actual altitude at about 30,000.

The significance of the figures, Atkinson says, did not occur to the pilot until after he had found his way home, but the figures, if correct, indicate a peak some 2000 or 3000 feet higher than Everest. For this part of China existing maps are notoriously unreliable; some of it has not been mapped at all. Atkinson says the pilot hopes to return to the mountain with a sealed barograph to get a more accurate check on its height.

DIES SAYS PEOPLE PAY RADIO BILL FOR WINCHELL ATTACKS

CHICAGO, March 29 (AP).—Representative Martin Dies (Dem., Texas), said yesterday that money which sponsors of certain radio programs are permitted to deduct from their income taxes was "being used to impede the war effort and spread disunity through attacks on the legislative branch of the government."

Dies released copies of a letter addressed to Joseph D. Nunan Jr. of Washington, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, referring specifically to the Walter Winchell program. Dies wrote that money deducted by his sponsor was being used to attack Congressmen.

Dies asked Nunan to provide the answers to these four questions: "1. What percentage of the cost of such radio programs is deductible from income taxes? "2. Under what rules or law are such deductions allowed? "3. Is it a fact that the failure of these sponsors to pay this money directly into the Treasury means an increase in the public debt and in the taxes which the people must pay? "4. Is it not a fact that the allowance of these deductions amounts to a Government subsidy of these radio programs, including the ones devoted to attacks upon the Congress? In other words, in effect, the Government and the taxpayers of America are paying the bills for Mr. Winchell's program."

'The Purple Heart'

Fox Headliner Friday

"THE PURPLE HEART," a Lewis-Milestone directed picture based on the stories of the American flyers who were executed by the Japanese following the flyers' bombing of Tokyo and other Japanese cities, opens Friday at the Fox Theater. With it is "Henry Aldrich—Boy Scout," with Jimmy Lyon.

"Tender Comrade," starring Ginger Rogers, opens tomorrow at the Ambassador, with "Hat Check Honey," with Leon Errol, as the second feature.

"Cry Havoc," with Margaret Sullivan, is the chief offering beginning tomorrow at Loew's. Second feature is "Swing Fever," with Kay Kyser and his band.

"Rancho Grande," a Mexican-made musical film, with Tito Guizar, Latin-American film favorite, will open a week's run Saturday at the Art Theater, 3143 Olive street.

Films remaining or swinging about at the other houses this week include "Rationing," with Wallace Beery, and "Hey, Rookie," Joe Besser, which go from Loew's to the Orpheum tomorrow; "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," Betty Hutton, and "Women in Bondage," Gail Patrick, holding over at the Shubert; the Missouri played on Thursday with a program not yet announced; and the St. Louis, beginning today, will show "Frisco Kid," James Cagney, and "Lifeboat," Tallulah Bankhead.

Starring in "THE PURPLE HEART" is Dana Andrews as the officer in charge of the American flyers. Other flyers are played by Richard Conte, Sam Levene, Farley Granger, Kevin O'Shea and Donald Barry. Important parts as a Japanese warlord and a Chinese are played respectively by Richard Loo and Peter Chong, both of whom happen to be Chinese. The story tells how the Americans, standing trial for "murder," come up to America's finest traditions in stoicism and bravery.

"HENRY ALDRICH—BOY SCOUT" is, as the title indicates, all about Henry Aldrich as a boy scout.

"TENDER COMRADE" to Miss Rogers in this picture is Robert Ryan. And, of course, Miss Rogers is his tender comrade. The picture's a love story, with Ruth Hussey in an important supporting part. Ginger plays the part of a wife of a soldier whose husband's gone to war.

"HAT CHECK HONEY" features Grace McDonald and Walter Catlett with Errol. Three top bands are in it, including Freddie Slack's, Harry Owens' and Ted Weems'.

With Miss Sullivan in "CRY HAVOC" is started Joan Blondell and Ann Sothern. The picture has an all-feminine cast, is about the nurses' aides who remained on Bataan.

"SWING FEVER" has William Gargan and Kayser "competing" for Marilyn Maxwell. Lena Horne's in the cast.

SO THEY MAY CARRY ON!

Lack of Sunshine Puts Browns and Cards Behind Training Schedule

Only Two Days' Work Outdoors

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.
CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 29.—It has been just nine days since the Browns started their training here and the weather man has not been at all kind, permitting only two days of outdoor work. And when the club reported here, or started to report, certainly there was little ground for optimism.

Still, today, with all of the difficulties, there has been an improvement, and Manager Luke Sewell, who is not ordinarily given to any outbursts of enthusiasm, declares:

"I think we will be able to put a representative team on the field when the season starts and keep it there."

And that, boys and girls, coming from Luke, is quite an effusion.

The reason for this terrific outburst of the old spring urge is that the Browns' front office has been able to straighten out quite a few tangles which existed in the club's relation with players.

The latest development has been the acquisition of Gene Moore of the Washington Senators to complete the Rick Ferrell trade. Rick, you'll remember, was transferred to Washington for Catcher Angelo Guilian and cash. But Angelo decided to give up baseball, which meant that the Washington team had to satisfy the Browns to make the deal legal.

It's Players They All Want. Clark Griffith, veteran owner of the Senators, wanted to add to the cash outlay, but the Browns insisted on a player.

"I'll give you more money, and you buy a player," Griff said.

"No, you take the money, buy a player and send him to us," replied the Browns. So, finally, Griff agreed to send them Gene Moore.

Now, Gene is the greatest outfielder in the world, and nobody claims he is. But he hit .268 in 92 games last season. He can play 154 games if necessary and should prove a real help to the Browns.

Sewell's idea, seemingly, is to provide enough players for each position so, no matter what comes, he'll be protected. He hopes to start the season with 10 or 11 pitchers and have eight or nine all season. He has three catchers and hopes to retain at least two; six infielders are possibilities, and he hopes to keep five; he would like to start with six outfielders and retain at least four.

That's the way it's going to be this season. No club will know just what to count upon and each will have to be prepared for any emergency.

A Day of Good News.

The Moore move was quickly upon the heels of the announcement that Milton Byrnes, an outfielder, had signed; that Red Hayworth, a catcher, was on his way; that Mike Kreevich, outfielder, was on the verge of reporting; that Harold Epps, outfielder, had been accepted for military service, had decided to play as long as he can and would report here shortly; that Mike Chartak, outfielder, had definitely decided to stay in his war job or play ball.

All of that put together means that the Browns now have 11 pitchers in camp. They have four infielders, all of them 4-F, and another, Floyd Baker, who has agreed to terms and is 4-F, and Mark Christman, who has not as yet made up his mind whether to remain in his war job or play ball.

They have six outfielders definitely accounted for, two of whom are here and three of them on the way and the sixth a possibility.

All of which still makes for something of a chaotic situation, but it is such a great improvement over a week ago that there is something approaching jubilation in the Browns' ranks.

Hospital List Shortened. Additional highlights appeared on the general picture when Patcher Al Hollingsworth and Outfielder Al Demaree returned to the working squad today. Hollingsworth had been suffering from an attack of tonsillitis and Demaree from a back muscle injury.

Today differed from yesterday in that it was snow flurries and cold this morning that kept the athletes indoors, in contrast to rain and wet grounds. Again a proposed game with Toledo had been postponed. Pitchers pitched and batters swung in the cage.

Catcher Joe Schultz remained alone on the hospital list. Epps and Hayworth remained among the missing.

And Sewell shook his head and said he'd have to work his men hard if and when the opportunity arises.

"We're really past the stage of indoor work," he remarked, "but we'll simply have to do the best we can."

Tough Task for Burton and Mataya in Title Pin Match

By Herman Wecke

It's no easy task that confronts Nelson Burton and Frank Mataya, national doubles champions, in their efforts to retain the title against Ned Day and Rudy Pugal, Milwaukee challengers, at Heidelberg Recreation, 5630 Gravois, this week end.

Twenty-one games will be rolled here in seven-game blocks, Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and evening.

As a result of the first half of the match rolled at West Allis, the St. Louisans trail by 10 points and 290 pins. The challengers totaled 8462 to 8172 for the titleholders. The challengers won 12 games, lost eight and tied one, while they outscored the St. Louisans in each of the seven-game blocks.

Day, the national singles champion, was the big gun in the West Allis series. He averaged 220.11, totaling 4631, with 16 of his 21 games over the 200 mark. Pugal was the low man in the first half, averaging only 182.9. He was over 200 only six times. For the champions, Burton averaged 196.17 and Mataya, 192.7. Burton had 11 games over 200 and Mataya seven.

The challengers hit the 400 total 12 times, getting a high of 493 in the third game of the third block, when Day hit 278, the third single of the match, and Pugal finished with 215. Burton and Mataya had 10 totals of better than 400, with 451 in the sixth game of the third seven as their best count.

In order to win and retain their title, Burton and Mataya will have to score 19 of the possible 27 points in the St. Louis half of the match. This means they'll have to win 13 of the 21 games and outtotal the challengers in each of the three blocks.

From all indications, Day will be the man who will have to be stopped. However, stopping the singles king is something. Before the start of the doubles title match, Day was on a tour of the Midwest and compiled a grand average of 222 in 22 games at Cleveland, 227 at Kalamazoo and 200 at Battle Creek. Which shows he is a pretty tough customer on any sort of alleys.

Bauer's Triumph in Husband-Wife Meet. The team of Henry and Marie Bauer, totaling 1266, won the husband-and-wife bowling tournament at the Century Lanes, Oille and Hattie Gibson, 1232, were second, followed by Jake and Marie Esser, 1221; Arnold and Louise Pingel, 1205 and Carl and Virginia Minhardt, 1204. Walter and Francis Moore had 892 for the high single scratch and Roy and Ruth Beckmeier, 463, for high handicap.

Softball Meeting. A preliminary meeting of those interested in the Municipal Softball Association will be held at the Sherman Community Center, tonight, starting at 8 o'clock.

News from other big league camps: Boston Braves—Pitcher Al Javery cut loose for first time. He pitched the equivalent of three full games during batting practice.

Boston Red Sox—Outfielder Leon Culbertson may be switched to infield position.

Cleveland Indians—Team held outdoor batting drill despite cold and raw wind.

Philadelphia Phillies—Club has made last offer to holdout Coaker Triplett, General Manager Herb Pennock declared.

Philadelphia Athletics—Rookie Infielder Frankie Julian was reclassified A-1 and left for New York home to await physical exam.

New York Yankees—Team purchased Second Baseman Mike Milosevich from Kansas City. Pitcher Bill Zuber reported.

New York Giants—Ace Adams, veteran relief pitcher, worked out for first time this season. He pitched batting practice.

Brooklyn Dodgers—Curt Davis, Bob Chipman, Bill Tanner and Hal Gregg were selected to pitch today's first exhibition game against Army team.

Pittsburgh Pirates—Tommy O'Brien, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, received orders from his

Table Tennis to Have 188 Entries From 20 States

Twenty states will be represented in the national table tennis championships this week end at the St. Louis U. Gym, and of the 188 players who will seek the United States titles, only 37 are residents of Missouri.

Indiana and Illinois will each be represented by 23 players, and Ohio and Wisconsin also have large delegations, chiefly because nine stars from Toledo alone have entered the competition and 10 are coming from Milwaukee.

Thomas F. X. Gibbons and Elmer Cinnater, co-chairmen of the meet, said last night that 12 entries received here after the closing deadline had been refused. Two of those were from Texas and one each from New Mexico and Florida.

One of the latest accepted was that of Alvin (Ty) Foon, a ranking player in Detroit. That Michigan city will also be represented by Max Hersh, who is certain to be among the eight seeded entrants in the men's singles division.

A classy field of 72 contestants has filed for men's singles competition, and that division, of course, will be topped by Billy Holzrichter, the 1943 national champion.

Other seeded contenders are likely to be Les Lowry of Newton, Mass.; John Somers of Brooklyn and Camp McCall, N. C.; Hersch, Mel Nichols of St. Louis and John Varga of South Bend, Ind. Lazzio Bellak, a former world's doubles champion and the best showman in last year's tournament here, has been officially entered, but there is some doubt if he can get an Army tour in order to compete. He is stationed in Louisiana.

Tibor Hazl, Bellak's doubles partner in world championship days and runner-up to Holzrichter here in the 1943 United States singles division, will definitely not be a contender, tournament officials said.

Fort Sheridan to Play Night Games. FORT SHERIDAN, Ill., March 29 (AP).—Soldiers at Fort Sheridan will have a baseball park this summer and will be able to play night games, too.

The post's horse show riding ring, popular site for military and civilian horse shows before the war, will be transformed into a lighted ball park as part of the spring and summer recreational program for soldiers, says Col. John T. Rheit, post commander.

Western Rifleman Second. WESTERN RIFLEMAN, Ind., March 29 (AP).—The Boonings of Wichita, Kan., eliminated Westinghouse team of Pittsburgh from the women's National A. A. U. basketball tournament with a hard-fought 24-20 victory last night. The Easterners trailed all the way.

The Nashville (Tenn.) Business College got a tournament queen in Maxine Vaughn and a 38-24 victory over the Graciers of Cincinnati, while the Chatham Blanketeers of Elkin, N. C., seeded No. 4, eliminated the Dr. Peppers of Dallas, 30-21.

The Pepsi Cops of Des Moines, unseeded, romped over the Cardinals of Okmulgee, Ok., 62-15. Mary Link with 15 and Jeannette Haas and Phyllis Zinn, with 14 each, led the Pepsi attack.

The seeded Chatham Blanketeers of Elkin, N. C., also advanced easily by defeating the Dr. Peppers of Dallas, Tex., 30-21.

The second-seeded Motor Coaches of Little Rock, Ark., eased by the Florida Gulf Life Girls of Jacksonville, Fla., 44 to 17, in a game that finished after midnight.

Today's quarterfinal schedule: 7 p. m.—A. I. B. Des Moines, vs. Boonings, Wichita, Kan. 8:10 p. m.—Villiers, Nashville, vs. Motor Coaches, Little Rock. 9:00 p. m.—Nashville Business College vs. Chatham Blanketeers, Elkin, N. C. 9:45 p. m.—Kornet, Dallas, vs. Pepsi Cops, Des Moines.

South Side Boxers Win From McBride. South Side High School's boxing team gained an 8-5 victory in a meet with McBride at the South Side gymnasium last night. There was only one clean knockout on the program.

Browns, likewise spoke optimistically about the coming baseball season.

George Musso, captain of the Chicago Bears professional football team, and Lt. George Swisher, former halfback of the Bears, were other speakers. All were introduced by Jimmy Conselman, former pro footballer and now assistant to Don Barnes.

A memorial stadium suitable for big league baseball could count on rental paid by the Browns and Cardinals, he said, and such rental would "go a long way toward meeting operating expenses."

The Quarterbacks Club has asked the city's war memorial committee to combine the idea of memorial to war dead with a useful public stadium, preferably to be located on the riverfront.

Donald Barnes, president of the Sammy Scully of Chicago, has been signed to meet Charley Riley, St. Louis' clever lightweight, in the ten round semifinal on Friday night's boxing program. Deacon Nathan Logan and Jim Elliott meet in the feature.

The two ten round bouts will be supported by two eight round fights and a six round opener. Another change in the card was announced by Promoter George Carson, Dick Miller of Peoria, Ill., replaces Eddie Lee of St. Louis against Irish Mickey Collins, Poplar Bluff, in the curtain raiser.

Scully fought here a year ago last February and was kayoed by Lee in three rounds. Since that time, Scully has fought regularly. He has won eight of his last ten bouts. He fought Willie Joyce five times, holding the conqueror of Henry Armstrong to draw twice, and recently lost a close decision to Gene Spencer. In his last fight, Scully kayoed Al Evans in Chicago.

Miller, just mustered out of the Marines, has had two bouts since returning to the ring and won both by knockouts.

North Side 'Y' Has Three Champions in Ozark Wrestling Meet. With three district titleholders returning to defend their crowns, North Side Y. M. C. A. team will be a logical favorite in the Ozark A. A. U. wrestling championship tournament to be held at Boy's Club, Friday and Saturday. The titleholders who will see action are: Jack Grubbs, former 113-pounder who will enter the 135-pound class; George Tucker, 175-pounds, and I. Bellsen, heavy-weight.

George Musso, captain of the Chicago Bears professional football team, and Lt. George Swisher, former halfback of the Bears, were other speakers. All were introduced by Jimmy Conselman, former pro footballer and now assistant to Don Barnes.

A memorial stadium suitable for big league baseball could count on rental paid by the Browns and Cardinals, he said, and such rental would "go a long way toward meeting operating expenses."

Redbirds Turn to Foot Races

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.
CAIRO, Ill., March 29.—Florida city baseball committees, if they needed to be reassured as to the value of their climate in the spring training of athletes, would get the answers they like best if they could interview Manager Billy Southworth and his Cardinals these days. Everybody knows that you can't do anything about the weather, and everybody knows that on account of the war complaining about it is a waste of time. But just the same this is a rather poor substitute for spring training that the champions of the National League are getting this year.

"Certainly, we're making the best of it," Southworth said after his men had been forced indoors again. "We ran and we held relay races and we hit grounders to infielders and outfielders, and we played catch. But a wooden gymnasium floor is no place to prepare to play baseball, and I'll admit I'm relieved each time we get out of a crowded gym with all players intact."

Looking Forward to the Day. And so you can rest assured that when we have nothing to worry us all except what we're going to do with peace, the Cardinals, with other ball clubs, will go to Florida or California or Texas. For there is one thing you can do about the weather, if it's all right with that old dobbie Keaney Landis—you can get the hell away from the kind you have in Missouri and Illinois in March and early April.

The Cardinals are not in good physical condition. No baseball team could get into good condition in this weather in so short a time. And if the sun doesn't come out soon the team's condition won't be very good when it's time to open the season. You can try to be in earnest about relay races between Hopp, Musial, Kurowski and Vannatter on one side and Garm, Burnett, Martin and Bergamo on the other, but it's only a matter of time before the men in foxholes, whose morale we war so much about in connection with the desire to keep baseball alive, probably won't thrill over news of such relay races. And even the tidbit that Sam Narmon beat Myron Thomas in a foot race scarcely will thrill a Redbird fan committee.

Max Lanier, who was rushed to a hospital yesterday after an attack of appendicitis, was released by the medics today. Alvin Jurisich has a blister on his foot and Harry Gumbert is nursing shin splints. And there'll be more shin splints if there's much more running on wood floors. When weather permits, the relay races will be taken outdoors.

St. L. U. High and McBride Elevens In Soccer Final. After watching McBride and St. Louis U. High teams win semifinal games in the high school soccer tournament, Missouri Soccer Commission officials expressed renewed hope in a very successful high school league next fall. The class of football shown by both the victors and the defeated semifinalists was far above expectations.

With Bob McEneny, of Schumacher fame, playing center forward the greater part of the game, McBride stopped Chamaine, 4 to 0. Mike Duffy, at one time regarded as a great center halfback prospect, scored a goal for St. Louis U. High and Tom Lawton scored another as the Junior Bills defeated South Side Catholic, 2 to 1.

The place and date of the final have not been determined by the scarcely will thrill a Redbird fan committee.

World's Most Publicized Race Horse

HAPPY birthday to you, Big Red! ... It's 27 years since your mammy Mah uba h brought you into the world to become America's No. 1 race horse, the country's most noted and most profitable sire and the world's most publicized race horse. ... Your racing days and stud service both have ended. ... But while horses are bred your name will never be forgotten. ... So, happy birthday, Man o' War.

Big Red is 27 years old today. ... The handsome chestnut son of a great daddy, Fair Play, is still frisky and lively, although he is reaching advanced years, as equine longevity goes. ... He raced only two campaigns but won 20 out of 21 races and some $248,000. ... Had he raced in the heyday of big money stakes for three campaigns he could easily have surpassed Whirlaway's total, as there was nothing in the country able to match speed or gameness with him.

And don't get the idea that Upset, the appropriate name of the horse that surprised Man o' War's followers by beating Big Red in his two-year-old campaign, even approached the famous horse in quality. ... Man o' War defeated Upset several times later and became so good that he drove out of competition practically all rivals. ... Only one horse besides Upset ever got his nose in front of Big Red in the stretch. ... That was John P. Grier. This good racer challenged Man o' War in the run home, but Man o' War simply turned on a little heat and went away.

Happy Birthdays

Often Celebrated.

THERE will be no banquets thrown this year to celebrate Big Red's birth anniversary. ... He'll receive a few callers, as usual. ... But in the past enthusiastic owners have made similar occasions a rite. ... One owner of a famous horse even invited guests to a banquet at which the horse himself was present.

Some day they ought to throw a party for Man o' War before Father Time catches in his checks. ... Here's a horse that probably has made more headlines through the years than any other racer in the world. ... There are those who think that, despite the fact he was unable to qualify for the English stud book, he is the No. 1 racer of all time, all countries! ... And that's not so unbelievable when you consider the fact that in his day he broke record after record at all distances. ... In the course of one of his long races he ran the half-mile in faster time than the record for that distance. ... In another distance race at 1 1/4 miles he ran the half in :46, six furlongs in 1:10 and a mile in 1:35 3-5!

Schatzman High With 34 Points

Two teams that figured to go far in the Ozark A. A. U. Junior basketball tournament, in progress at Boy's Club gymnasium, passed out of the picture unexpectedly last night when Wellston Eagles and Rams scored upsets.

St. Adalbert was the surprised victim of Wellston Eagles, who played a tight defensive game to win by a score of 26 to 20, and strong Third Baptist was the shocked victim of Rams, who butted their way to a 44-to-38 victory.

High scorer for the evening was the Soldan High boy, Marvin Schatzman, who sank 17 field goals for 34 points in leading St. Barbara to a 62-to-26 victory over Rangers.

The favored Meramec whipped Pals A. C. 49 to 32.

Miller Named Coach.

PHILADELPHIA, March 29 (AP).—Henry F. (Heinie) Miller, All-America end at University of Pennsylvania in 1919, was named football coach at Penn Charter School yesterday, succeeding the one-time Colgate star, John Orst.

His sons and daughters have therefore won more money than the get of any other stallion on the globe. ... He sired big winners almost from the start of his racing retirement.

Two years after his breeding farm service began he sired American Flag. ... The following year he begot Crusader. ... Both horses became the three-year-old champions of their respective seasons, 1925 and 1926.

Included in his long list of famous sons and daughters are two derby winners—Clyde Van Dusen and the sensational War Admiral. ... Strange to say Man o' War did not win the Kentucky Derby. ... That was not through defeat but because Owner Samuel Riddle declined to send him West.

Perhaps the greatest tribute paid to a horse as a sire, was the price demanded for servicing mares. ... At one time, it is reported, this figure reached $5000. ... The highest charge we know of today is $2500 for the great foreign sire Bahram, now standing at the North Wales Stud in Virginia. ... The great Whirlaway commands only $1500 and the good handicapper horse Eight Thirty only $1000.

Recently, that fine publication the "Blood-Horse," conducted a poll, with experts invited to name the 20 horses entitled to first news consideration. ... Man o' War topped the list in the ballot. ... Of him the Blood-Horse editor wrote: "Whenever the great horses of America are listed Man o' War usually is rated No. 1. Time has not relegated him to the limbo of the forgotten. ... He still draws thousands of visitors to Faraway Farm in Kentucky, annually. ... Twenty-four years have passed since he raced, yet he is still the yardstick by which thoroughbred class is measured. ... If not the greatest, none will deny that he was one of the mightiest to race in this or any country."

Sun Beau Dies.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 29 (AP).—Sun Beau, world's greatest money-winning thoroughbred racehorse from 1931 to 1940, died suddenly today at a stud farm in Doswell, Va.

The 19-year-old bay horse earned $376,744 for his owner, the late Willis Sharpe Kilmer of Binghamton.

Sun Beau, by Sun Briar-Beautiful Lady, was retired in 1931. His winnings were surpassed by Sea-biscuit in 1940.

Happy Birthday

MAN O' WAR, America's No. 1 race horse and sire in his time. He is 27 years old today. He retired from racing in 1920, and is no longer serving as sire at the Faraway Farm, near Lexington, Ky.

shows that except on rare occasions his position marks showed he led his field from start to finish. ... His trainer used to boast that Big Red so loved to run that he broke world records in his workouts. ... He had everything that a horse should have, winning races under as high as 138 pounds. ... On other occasions he carried 135 pounds. ... As a juvenile he won six times carrying 130 pounds.

In the Lawrence Realization Stakes he beat Hoodwink by 100 lengths, setting a world record for 1 1/4 miles which still stands: 2:40 4-5. ... In all of his 21 races he was odds-on favorite at prices ranging from 3 to 5 on his very first start to 1 to 100, at which figure he was held on three occasions. ... Ever hear of a nag with a betting record like that?

His Progeny Set a

Money-Winning Mark.

THERE are many fabulous features about this almost incredible thoroughbred. ... One of these is the fact that his progeny have won $3,147,187.

I can TASTE it ain't real

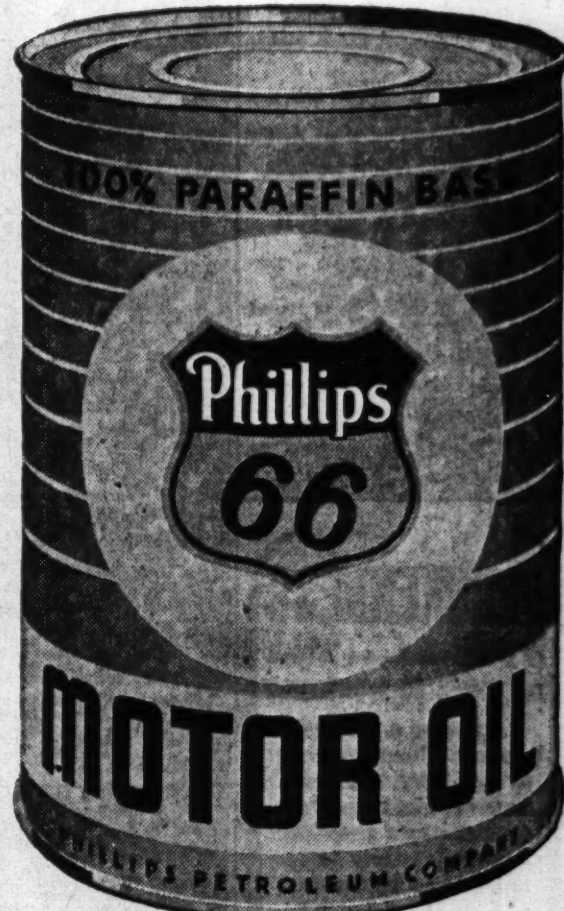

IT'S NEWS, said a famous editor, when boy bites dog but commonplace when dog bites boy.

It is not quite clear why our young inquiring reporter had to sink his teeth into the subject to discover that it isn't the genuine article. But many a motorist would like some similar way of quickly discovering the real thing when he wants high quality motor oil.

The difficulty is that he can't detect quality in a lubricant by taste, smell, sight, or feel. Yet there is an easy solution to the problem. Just remember that to end confusion and doubt, Phillips makes this simple, straightforward statement: If you want our best oil, remember we specify that Phillips 66 Motor Oil is our finest quality ... the highest-grade and greatest value ... among all the oils we offer to average motorists.

The recommended oil change period used to be every 1,000 miles. With today's reduced driving, experts say motor life is lengthened by changing oil every two months. And now is the time for seasonal change to replace winter-worn lubricant. So be sure to get quality by asking for Phillips 66 Motor Oil.

Stripper Reveals a Genteel Background

By Jack Balch

FRANCES KNIGHT, the strip artist of "Good Night Ladies," the three acts of dramaticy—pardon, dramaticy—at the American, when I asked her for an interview, said "Certainly, where do you want it?" A stickler for giving every interview the sort of setting that seems most appropriate to it, there was only one possible answer. "How about your dressing room?" The granddaughter of a Governor of Kentucky, the daughter of a banker, a one-time active Junior Leaguer in her home state and a student at the University of Minnesota who chose what she's doing "as much for intellectual as other reasons," she quite understood that the wolflike gleam in the whites of my eyes was simply a trick of lighting and all resemblance between it and my request were purely coincidental.

SO, INSTEAD OF wasting time questioning my motives or getting coy on the subject, she said, "Your request is natural enough. When?" She even joked on the subject, headlining my future story for me with "Beautiful Stripper Bares All in Exclusive Lowdown While Dressing to Undress." We fixed the time. After this, we settled down to her drinking orange juice and me drinking something else and both of us talking about this, that and the other for an hour or two, the subjects including gin rummy, Shakespeare, Eighteenth Century poetry, the possible dispositions of Europe after the war, the way a lady bears (the word is not "bares," printer) herself, where in St. Louis you can get good food, what an actor's responsibility and relationship to a play is, and what San Francisco and Manhattan have in common in attractions both obvious and hidden.

ALTHOUGH THIS conversation had nothing to do with the interview, so I thought at the time, you can't help but work at your craft even when you think you're relaxing. I noticed, true enough, that my subject for tomorrow had green eyes that had a level way of looking at you through their slightly slanted shapes, reddish brown hair that was in bloom and profusion, a height that would be about five feet six ("that's right," she told me later, in the dressing room), a weight around 122 ("correct"), and a Venus-like figure streamlined by golf ("I play a helluva game") and other exercises, yet kept rounded and smooth by living that includes regular sleep and proper eating and excludes nicotine and alcohol. Her bust's 35, waist's 21, hips are 36. But these assets, which are to a strip artist what color, form, composition and perspective are to a painting or ham is to eggs, somehow did not suggest the "stripper" to me.

THIS 23-YEAR-OLD GIRL, as you may guess from the hints of conversation mentioned, is a person of convictions and ideas. I won't say that we were always in agreement. As a matter of fact, it sometimes seemed to me that she was too sure of some things. But a basic blend of spirit, independence, fastidiousness, honesty and appetite was impressive, and kept making me forget that the way she's attained fame is to come on stage dressed in a heap of black stuffs and laces that's a blueprint of narcissist sex which she proceeds to loosen and almost (but not quite) lose to an accompaniment of ceremonial patter to the general effect that—Gals who aspire to take off their scanties Are simply fulfilling ancestral fancies.

TAKE HER REASON for being on the stage. "I'd always been sheltered, had everything done for me. But I didn't want to be sheltered, wanted to do things for myself. In the course of things for girls in my set, I knew I'd be passed on to a husband from my parents. I have nothing against a husband, no more than I have against parents. Intend to have a husband after the war's over. But again, as with my parents, I'd be sheltered, have things done for me. So I went out to stand on my own feet. When I marry I'll give up standing on my own feet, let myself be carried across a threshold gladly. I'll be content to have things done for me then, knowing that I can do things for myself. I prefer that to marrying out of helplessness, as so many women do."

HER SKIN IS a pale rose without makeup. On the street, she doesn't try to look like an actress. In her dressing room, at the makeup table and mirror, she began to undergo a change into something "new and strange" that you people see before you on the stage when she glides on in the second act and begins to circle and sway and "practice, practice, practice." Her eyelashes grew longer, darker before my eyes, her cheeks turned flushed, voluptuous. She retired behind a screen three feet away. When she came out from behind it, she was as you know her. "Does this meet with your approval?" she laughed, the question a rare note of coquetry. I told her it not only met with, but held hands with my approval. Others approve too. She's received hundreds of letters proposing marriage. One was from Tommy Manville. She answers all letters. She wrote Mr. Manville saying she'd just as soon be Bluebeard's ninth wife as "Graybeard's" eighth. This is her first professional part. She never saw a strip act before doing her portrayal of one. She calls herself "an amateur with two years' professional experience."

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

WHEN I was a sophomore in high school I started going out with a boy whose family was a friend of my own. At first we just dated with the crowd, then we went steady for a year and a half till he was called into the Service. I promised to wait for him and Mother and my sister resented this, said I was too young to know my own mind. Finally I was convinced they were right and started going out with other fellows. One of the boys from the old crowd came home on furlough and we dated the entire time he was home; the same with his second furlough, and now we know we love each other. Mother doesn't object for she says I am now 18 and should know my own mind. But how am I to tell the first boy what has happened since he went overseas? I feel awful about it, I don't want him to feel like some of the boys who write home broken-hearted after a thing like this happens. Still I couldn't help myself. What shall I do?

DIMPLES.

I am not quite sure that I agree with your mother that you know your own mind, now that you're 18. Most girls of 18 find they fall in love a time or two more before they stop changing their minds and are ready to settle down. I do agree with her that you should not have made the boy overseas any promises about waiting for him, it is much wiser when you are both so young to remain good friends and see how you feel about matters after the war. The only fair thing to do, of course, is to write the boy overseas and tell him that you think it better for neither of you to be tied down with any promises at the present time. Tell him you will always be his friend, hope he will continue to write, but that you aren't really sure enough of your own mind to be making promises to anyone. Then don't make any to the second boy, either, for a time. It is natural at your age and particularly in times like this to think yourself in love with almost any attractive lad in uniform who gives you a wonderful time, but you would be a smart girl to keep your head and tell this lad you are taking your time about giving your heart.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM IN MY TWENTIES and have been married several years. I have a child which is not my husband's and when he gets angry with me he throws up to me the fact that the baby's father didn't marry me. He didn't because his mother and others kept him from it, but now we know that we love each other, even though we are both married to someone else. He says if I will just give him the chance he will make up to me the wrong he did me and our child. I know I will never love anyone as I love him. What shall we do?

UNDECIDED.

Your husband when he married you knew you had this child, knew the circumstances, and however angry he gets he should not throw up the matter to you. I did not print all your letter, but find in it no evidence that your husband is anything but a good father to your child. You and the baby's father are now married to someone else, and the past should be forgotten. Whatever the reason may have been that he did not marry you, the fact remains that he and his family left you alone to struggle as best you could and care for his child. You evidently thought you loved your husband when you married him, and until the first man came back into your life. Forget him. You and the baby are being cared for, your husband has been a good husband and marriage vows were not made to be broken. To sentimentalize over the past at the expense of the present and the future is bad business. Put all these thoughts from your mind and concentrate on being a good wife and a good mother to your child.

Dear Martha Carr:

THERE IS A BOY I think a lot of and he seems to care for me. When we go out, however, we never go anywhere except for a walk, a ride or just stay home. And all he does is talk about other girls he knows and what fun he had on dates with them. Whenever he comes down he is always late or doesn't appear at all and has some silly excuse. Just tonight he asked me to go out with him, for a change, along with several other boys and girls, and told me if I wouldn't he'd never forgive me. Then he never turned up. What shall I do?

HEARTSICK.

It seems to me that you are decidedly wasting your time. Surely there are plenty of boys in the crowd who appreciate your company more than to just sit around talking about other girls to you, and never taking you anywhere but for a walk. There should be plenty also, with enough manners to recognize that a date is a date and not stand a girl up. What is the point to subjecting yourself to treatment like this? Stop allowing him to wear out your parlor sofa and your disposition, have previous engagements galore.

IN ANSWER TO "Troubled Mae": You say you don't want to be a "home wrecker" so you have your own answer right there. A common sense will tell you the way not to be a home wrecker is to keep away from other women's husbands. I would certainly question the reason this man gives for having married his wife, and would take no stock in his promise to divorce her. Be wise, see no more of him, and next time you begin to date a man find out first whether or not he is married.

IN ANSWER TO "War Worker": Go to the office of the Social Security Board, 815 Olive st., regarding your card. Better check with U. S. Employment Service regarding age limit and type of clothing for the job you contemplate. For anyone as much overweight as yourself you will be very unwise to try to reduce without first consulting a reputable doctor who will put you on the proper kind of diet. The remedy you mention will cause you to lose very little, if any, weight.

IN ANSWER TO "Sandra": I am sorry, but I cannot publish a letter phrased as yours was, and you would be most unwise to try to have a child adopted in that manner. Untold complications might arise later. I suggest you contact the Salvation Army Booth Memorial Hospital, 3740 Marine avenue, where I believe you can be best taken care of under the circumstances.

IN ANSWER TO "A. N.": St. Mary's and some of the other hospitals use girls from Scout troops to help around the hospital, carrying trays, etc. If you belong to a Scout troop perhaps you could help in this way.

IN ANSWER TO "J. Z.": I am told that a star is not put on the service flag for a cadet nurse, and that she does not have the privilege of postage-free mail.

Right Diet Is Certain To Reduce

By

Logan Clendening, M. D.

I PAUSE to recommend to the overweight among my readers the Lenten diets I have been publishing. If you began in mid-Lent and followed them faithfully, and if you were as much as 20 to 30 per cent overweight you will be 10 to 15 pounds thinner by Easter.

The diets have been very carefully designed by an expert to conform to war time rationing and points. One advantage of the diets is that you will save ration stamps on them. They are arranged so that leftovers are made up from the principal meat or food of the day before. If you under eat on this your family may over eat because there will be more family ration points. They are also arranged so that the vitamin and mineral content is up to par. The protein is adequate though low. The caloric value of a day's food intake in this diet is quite low and practically guarantees weight loss. Almost any adult, no matter how small, requires 1500 calories daily; a diet restricted to 1000 calories will make him lose weight. The Lenten diets here presented contain 450 to 500 calories daily.

THIS FOLLOWS the formula of Newburgh, of Ann Arbor, who finds that obese persons can subsist on 450 calories a day and are in nitrogen balance if the diet contains 60 grams of protein a day. If they diet and keep on working they need more carbohydrate than Newburgh gives his hospital patients, which is 32 grams, and I am assuming my Lenten diets will continue activity so the carbohydrate content of my Lenten diets is above 32 grams. This maintains the acid base balance.

The cause of overweight is still more or less a matter of debate. The fatty, the grossly overweight person, protests he does not eat any more than his thin or normal-weighted brother. But if he is right and there is something different in his bodily mechanism, the experts and researchers haven't found it. One might think the processes and fires of life went on at a lower level, but the basal metabolism, which is the index of the fires, is the same for the obese person as for the normal. Or if there is any difference, the obese person is likely to produce a little more heat.

THE GLANDS—those ductless glands—so often incriminated are very seldom the cause of weight. The thyroid or pituitary way is very unsatisfactory. There is as a background for any case of obesity, probably a steady long continued slight increase of food intake and a slight decrease of activity. "The stout man may be somewhat different from others," says Alvarez, of the Mayo Clinic, "in that when he is tired he wants plenty of food; the thin type of person when tired often can't eat much." Reducing is indicated for much more than mere convenience in getting around easier, or vanity in having the clothing fit. The death rate among overweight is proportionately higher at different ages almost exactly at the proportion of overweight. In other words at 40, people 40 per cent overweight have a 40 per cent higher death rate; at 50, those 50 per cent overweight have a 50 per cent higher death rate, and so on.

"JUST STARTING them now? why mine are up inches already!" and the early bird gardeners smile at me condescendingly as they boast about their seed "flats." Well, how are they doing? I ask. Quietly, their pride slips away. They admit the seedlings are rather skinny and rather pale. I hope there is no trace of "I told you so" in my voice when I suggest that now is the time for indoor plantings—or replantings.

According to the calendar we could have started sooner. But oldtimers get their "go" signal from the weather. Sun-starved plants, whether they are growing in or out of doors are tall, skinny, unhealthy critters. It is better to start over and replant, than to try to nurse weaklings back to health. Spring is here now; sunny days are with us. It's the right time to start planting!

What does it take to start tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and some of the cabbages and cabbage family like broccoli, cauliflower, or a small bag of good soil from a florist, makes one-third of the recipe. You will also want one-third of sand and one-third of peat moss. Stir them up together and then sift them into the plant "flat" through an old wide-mouth sieve or a piece of coarse screening.

Drainage keeps the indoor seed beds from rotting. What could be simpler? Holes in the bottom of the containers or spacing between the bottom slats, are the first "must." Then fill in the first layer with broken bits of flower pots, coarse gravel or small stones. I scoop up a bit of the driveway for the drainage layers—there's always something around the garden that will do the work.

Soil that will give the seedlings enough to eat, and invite them to spread out their roots and grow well, is concocted of a 3-way mix. A few shovelfuls of the very best soil your garden offers, or a small bag of good soil from a florist, makes one-third of the recipe. You will also want one-third of sand and one-third of peat moss. Stir them up together and then sift them into the plant "flat" through an old wide-mouth sieve or a piece of coarse screening.

If you don't firm the soil around the edges and especially in the corners, there will be ridges and valleys with a small-scale erosion problem. Don't be too tough, but you can bang the "flat," tap the sides, and give it a few quick shakes. The bottom of a glass or any flat surface will do for top tamping. I start by filling the

My Day -o-

By Eleanor Roosevelt

GUATEMALA CITY, GUATEMALA, Tuesday

ON our last full day in Panama, we left the house at the very reasonable hour of 8 a. m. We visited the marines, saw the naval hospital and attended a demonstration at the fire fighting school. The men do a remarkable job of fire fighting there. They are not only putting the men at the base through this school, but they even give intensive instruction to men who can be spared from ships. It was an extraordinary demonstration of how fire could be handled on ship board. As one boy said: "In the old days we would have thought there was nothing to do but jump overboard." It is a very important course for both officers and men to take, as it gives them knowledge and training which will see them through many tight places.

We went from there to another naval installation on a nearby island. This gave me my first chance to travel on a PT boat. What speed these boats have! Any young man who has ever liked a yacht would be fascinated by the compactness with which they are designed. I went all through the boat, for I knew I would probably never have another chance to see one. My chief concern on the trip was a photographer, who insisted on taking photographs from precarious places. I was thankful when we had him safe on land again.

Luncheon. After returning to the mainland, we went to visit a school run primarily for Puerto Rican industrial workers, although many officers and men from the continental troops attend. We heard an orientation lecture given in Spanish and I thought every class, whether it was held in a classroom or in a shop, captured the men's attention and achieved the desired results. Then we went to Gen. Brett's residence for a press conference.

These conferences are rather amusing because many of the press representatives speak only Spanish. . . . Therefore the questions are carefully prepared in Spanish and translated into English. As I answer them, they have to be translated into Spanish.

Later, we went for a short drive around the city and visited the very fine Santomas Hospital. Many of the nurses on the staff go to the USO dances on their time off. I had a glimpse of the Church of San Jose, with its wonderful golden altar which was brought from Brazil many years ago. It is carved out of mahogany and covered with gold leaf. It is one of the most elaborate and dazzling pieces of work I have ever seen.

We had supper in one of the enlisted Navy men's messes, and at 6 o'clock we attended an informal reception given by the President and Madame de la Guardia at the Presidencia. In the evening we went to three USO clubs. One had a particularly large gathering and the next bakers had provided one of the most elaborate cakes I ever saw in my honor. So, of course, I had to cut it. Again I drew the door prizes at a jungle dance, and then the show went merrily on.

We did have a little time to sit and talk to our hosts, and I was glad to have this opportunity.

Some Hints on Preparing Seed Boxes, Providing Good Soil and Drainage

Soil that will give the seedlings enough to eat, and invite them to spread out their roots and grow well, is concocted of a 3-way mix. Then fill in the first layer with broken bits of flower pots, coarse gravel or small stones. Contract Bridge

IT usually is a bridge sin to let the declarer discard a loser from one hand while he ruffs in the other, but at times this becomes superlative defense. For example:

West opened the diamond jack; shoots to push their way into the diamond trick, then shifted to a spade. Declarer won this in dummy, watered the surface. Otherwise, my and carefully considered how carefully pour a very thin stream of water between the row markers, so that the sand is dampened. Damp and dark combined with the warm temperature of the indoors, starts that marvelous something within the seed that is like setting a match to TNT. The seed awakens! Growth begins! Until the seedlings push through into the light, keep the flats covered with any sort of damp cloth. If the air in your home is very dry, you may need to moisten the cloth at night and morning.

Into the sunlight and off with the cloth covering, the young sprouts demand as they push through the soil. From now on see that they get plenty of sun and just enough water. Too much watering is one of the commonest causes of failure with indoor plantings. Bottom watering every few days is the best; let the "flats" soak up water until you notice that the surface looks moist but not wet.

Transplanting and "hardening" or getting the plants used to outdoor conditions will be on our schedule in a few weeks.
